

Give Up Hope for Ending Congress Session Tonight

Senate-House Committees Argue Over Wagner Housing Bill MAY END SATURDAY

Democratic Leader Barkley First Saw Adjournment Today

Washington—(P)—Congressional leaders virtually abandoned hope of adjourning congress tonight when senate-house conference committees failed to reach an agreement on the important Wagner housing bill.

House Leader Rayburn told reporters a resolution for adjournment tonight definitely would not be brought before the house.

He said he had told Senate Majority Leader Barkley it would be impossible to adjourn before tomorrow and Barkley had agreed with him.

He spoke of a possibility of winding up the work of the house somewhere between 2 and 5 o'clock tomorrow.

Senator Walsh (D-Mass.), ranking senate member of the housing bill conference, a few moments before he said the committee probably would not reach an agreement before tomorrow.

When the senate met today, Barkley had said there was "a chance" an adjournment tonight if conferees on the housing bill reached an agreement.

Both houses were ready for an unspectacular adjournment of the long, unproductive session begun in January.

Last Minute Dispute
Only a last minute dispute between house and senate over the form of housing legislation broke the abnormal calm of the closing hours.

A momentary flurry was created last night by the refusal of southern Democratic representatives to take part in a party caucus called by supporters of the administration wage and hour bill.

The supporters wanted the caucus to force the house rules committee to let the bill be debated.

Southwestern, who contended the measure would hamper industrial growth in their states, would not answer roll call—and a quorum could not be obtained.

Consequently, it became certain that the wage and hour program, already passed by the senate, would go over until next session.

There was a possibility, however, one of its chief provisions—abolition of labor by children under 16—might be enacted this year. The senate unexpectedly approved that portion yesterday as a separate bill.

All major bills on the pre-adjournment calendar have passed both houses, except for the third deficiency appropriation measure which the senate took up today. Its appropriations committee approved the inclusion of $20,000,000 to start the farm tenancy program, funds which the house already had voted.

The senate passed yesterday the bill designed to close loopholes in the tax laws, an outgrowth of that inquiry into tax evasion and avoidance requested by President Roosevelt. The house probably will accept minor amendments.

So little was left to be done that veteran observers and legislators wondered why the leaders did not wind up the session tonight. There was a belief in some quarters that

Milwaukee Industrialist Leaves $519,000 Estate

Milwaukee—(P)—The estate of Albert O. Trostel, 70-year old industrialist who died Oct. 14, 1936, was valued at $519,000 in an inventory filed yesterday in county court.

At the time of his death Trostel was board chairman of the Albert O. Trostel and Sons company, tannery, president of the Waukesha Rocco company, and a director of the Schlitz Brewing company.

Surviving are the widow, two daughters, a sister, and a son, Albert Jr., president of the tannery.

Early Morning Blaze Routs Hotel Guests

Milwaukee—(P)—Fire on the seventh floor of the Schroeder hotel drove 30 guests from their rooms shortly after 1 a. m. today.

Deny Telephone Co. Plea to Pass Tax on Users

Public Service Commission Won't Permit Increase in Exchange Rates

Madison—(P)—The public service commission denied today the application of the Wisconsin Telephone company for authority to impose a temporary surcharge of 4.4 per cent on its local exchange rates to reimburse itself for payment of an emergency relief tax.

The commission decided the company's proposed rate increase was unreasonable and discriminatory, that no emergency confronts the company, and that the authorization sought was not necessary to prevent injury to the company's business or interests.

The tax which the company declared "presents an emergency which it is not possible to meet or absorb as a whole, other than by collecting a temporary surcharge," was enacted by the legislature Feb. 11 to provide revenue enabling the state to qualify for federal allotments for blind and old age pensions and care of dependent children.

The emergency assessment on Wisconsin Telephone company property for the year totaled $886,516. On March 4 the company asked permission to levy a surcharge on local exchange rates which, officials estimated, would produce $533,014, leaving $153,502 to be drawn from toll operations.

The company contended it had not earned a fair return on its investment during the depression, but had refrained from increasing its exchange rates during that time, and that recent business improvement has been offset largely by increases in costs, including taxes and wages.

Company counsel may ask a rehearing by the commission as the first step in an appeal. The Dane county circuit court, which has

LaCrosse Engineer And Mayor in Feud

Council Takes Away Boerner's Right to Make Appointment

LaCrosse—(P)—Ten minutes after Mayor C. A. Boerner read an open letter to the city council charging City Engineer John Barth with inefficiency in office, the council last night passed an ordinance removing from the mayor the right to appoint an engineer.

It was the latest and bitterest chapter in the feud between the mayor and the council, begun when Boerner did not reappoint Barth, or name another engineer, as he should have done last May according to a charter ordinance.

After reading the letter, Boerner said last night, "I am not asking that it be placed on file, but the council decided a committee should investigate Boerner's assertions."

The ordinance does not go into effect for 60 days. It will then be effective unless a sufficient number of signers petition for a referendum on the ordinance.

In the meantime, Boerner has the opportunity of nominating some candidate whom the council can approve. It will not be Barth. Boerner said last night.

Barth, still in office until the new appointment is made, said today he is "too mad right now" to answer Boerner's allegations of inefficiency.

Upper Peninsula May Get Air Mail Service

Washington—(P)—Senator Prentiss M. Brown of Michigan said today legislation may be adopted this session which would give Michigan's upper peninsula air mail service.

A house bill on the senate calendar would extend from 32,000 to 35,000 miles the limit on air mail service for the country.

Brown said he believed the bill may be shunted through the senate in the scramble for adjournment. Authoritative sources said Brown had a tentative promise of an air mail line extension for Milwaukee, Wis., to Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., if the additional mileage is approved.

Wife Slashed by Her Husband Is Recovering

Wauwatosa—(P)—Mrs. Martha Nelson, 43, slashed by her husband yesterday, spent a restful night at Memorial hospital and was reported improved today by hospital attendants.

District Attorney Clayton J. Crooks said yesterday he believed her husband Richard, 45, owner of a hotel in Schofield, ended his own life by cutting his throat and injured his wife as she sought to stop him.

KEEP OFFICE IN FAMILY

Governor Bibb Graves of Alabama and his wife, above, are shown in Washington where yesterday the Alabama governor appointed his wife to succeed Hugo L. Black, newly appointed supreme court justice, in the senate. Commenting on the appointment Governor Graves said his wife, Dixie Graves, could fill any appointment.

Alabama Governor's Wife Goes to Senate

Washington—(P)—Mrs. Dixie Graves, wife of Governor Bibb Graves of Alabama, took her oath of office today as the successor in the senate of Senator Black, recently appointed to the supreme court.

She was sworn on the senate floor as the fourth woman to hold a seat in that body.

Her husband had explained he named her senator only until a special election could be held to fill Black's unexpired term of office.

Mrs. Graves was dressed in a du-bonnet print, and wore a bunch of gardenias on her shoulder.

She was escorted to the vice president's desk to take the oath by Senator Bankhead, senior senator from Alabama.

While her certificate of appointment was read to the senate, Mrs. Graves sat quietly in the rear row with Bankhead, her husband, and Representative Joe Starnes, of Guntersville, Ala.

Mrs. Caraway (D-Ark.), the only other woman senator, sat in Black's old seat, in the center of the Democratic side of the chamber.

"Always before," Mrs. Graves said, "we have gone everywhere together—done everything together. When he became governor, I felt his job was more important. I did everything possible to help him, and limited the club activities which had been my principal interest outside my home."

The 55-year old Alabama woman will serve until a Democratic primary next Feb. 1 selects the party's candidate for the remainder of Black's term, which ends in January, 1939.

The nominee will take over the seat at once by appointment. Graves said, without waiting for a special election on April 6, because democratic candidates in Alabama usually have little opposition.

The governor announced he chose his wife not only because she is "best-fitted" but because he did not want to give any candidate for the nomination an advantage. A hot fight for the senatorship is expected.

Mrs. Graves will be paid at the rate of $10,000 a year, almost twice as much as her husband's $5,000 salary. In addition, she will receive the franking privilege, travel allowances, and funds for office help.

Relief Plane Off To Seek Fliers

Fort Arthur, Ont.—(Canadian Press)—Sir Hubert Wilkins and his party of five air searchers for the Russian fliers missing on an over-the-pole flight from Moscow to New York, took off from here today on their race to the Arctic.

The big silver flying boat, in which the Wilkins expedition left New York yesterday, rose from the harbor here on a 1,200-mile leg to Fort Smith, northwest territory.

Their huge silver flying boat, purchased by the Russian government for the expedition, will fly north to help the other aviators search for Sigismund Levanevsky and his five companions, last heard from a week ago today, several hours before their four-motored plane was expected in Fairbanks to refuel for a dash to the United States.

Pick Lawyer to Help Collect From Taverns

Madison—(P)—Attorney General Orland S. Loomis named Joseph B. Molinaro, of Kenosha, today to assist Attorney Carl Ludwig of Milwaukee in the state's attempt to collect approximately $3,000,000 from bonding companies in tavern bond forfeitures.

Ludwig recently was appointed to study these tavern cases preliminary to seeking collection.

Molinaro has been practicing in Kenosha since his graduation from the Marquette university law school in 1932. He received his bachelor's degree from Columbia college, DuBuque, Iowa.

AFFIRM DEFICIENCY

Washington—(P)—The board of tax appeals affirmed a $4,203 deficiency in the 1929, 1930 and 1931 income taxes of J. E. Morgan, H. R. Kimberly and J. C. Thompson, trustees of the Morgan trust, all of Oshkosh, Wis., assessed by the bureau of internal revenue.

3 Dividends Declared By Kimberly Clark

Chicago—(P)—Directors of Kimberly-Clark corporation, Neenah, Wis., yesterday declared three dividends. One was a 25 cent dividend on the common stock, apparently a regular quarterly disbursement, another was an extra of 50 cents a share, also on the common stock, and the third was $1.50 a share on the preferred stock. All three are payable Oct. 1 to stock of record Sept. 11.

Dohr Orders All Pin Ball, Slot Machines From County

All slot and pin ball machines and other gambling devices were ordered out of Outagamie county by Saturday morning by District Attorney Raymond P. Dohr today. The edict followed a checkup made yesterday in the county by the district attorney and Sheriff John Lappen.

Although no slot machines were found in the checkup, many taverns were found to have pin ball machines. District Attorney Dohr said. He explained that pin ball machines were declared legal in circuit court about a year ago, but that a recent ruling of the state supreme court has made them illegal. No such machines will be allowed, he said, although they may be licensed in some municipalities.

"Every gambling device must be removed by Saturday morning, and we are going to have the county checked regularly so that they will not be returned to use," District Attorney Dohr declared.

"Members of the sheriff's department have been instructed to report any violations of the order and immediate investigation will be made of every place reported to have a gambling machine," Sheriff Lappen warned.

American Sailor Killed and 18 Injured When Shell Drops On U. S. Warship at Shanghai

Don't Know Whether Shell Came From Jap Or Chinese Battery

NO OFFICIAL ACTION

President Says Men on Spot Will Know What To Do in Emergency

Washington—Naval attaches said they expected Admiral Harry E. Yarnell, commander of the Asiatic fleet, to protest sharply the explosion of an anti-aircraft shell on the cruiser Augusta at Shanghai.

It was understood the protest probably would be made to both China and Japan.

As word of the shelling spread around capitol hill, legislators manifest considerable interest but were slow to comment on its possible significance.

Chairman McReynolds (D-Tenn.) of the house foreign affairs committee said the incident was "unfortunate" but that he believed the president was right in not yet having invoked the neutrality act in the Sino-Japanese conflict.

Some other house members called for application of the act.

Shanghai—(P)—One United States sailor was killed and eighteen wounded tonight when an anti-aircraft shell of undetermined origin struck the after well deck of the Cruiser Augusta flagship of the United States Asiatic fleet.

The Augusta, flagship of Admiral Harry E. Yarnell, fleet commander, has been lying in the Whangpoo river a little downstream from the heart of the international settlement, covering the evacuation of American refugees from stricken Shanghai.

The shell plunged from a high angle. Both Japanese and Chinese artillery and anti-aircraft batteries had been firing furiously through the late afternoon and into the night.

The sailor killed was Freddie John Falgout of Raceland, Fla. None of the eighteen wounded was seriously hurt.

The shell struck the Augusta at 6:40 p. m. when Japanese and Chinese guns were roaring on both banks of the Whangpoo and from warships on the river.

More Shells Fall
Shortly before the Augusta was struck three big shells, believed to have come from Chinese guns concealed on rooftops in the northern Chapel area plunged into the river close to the cruiser.

The Augusta's crew of 800 immediately was ordered to take shelter below decks. The crews of other American and foreign warships on the Whangpoo stood similar action.

The Augusta stood by earlier today as two United States destroyers and Dollar liners carried 1,000 American refugees down the river.

Exhume Another Body In Mass Murder Case

Cincinnati—(P)—While experts made a post mortem examination of the body of Mrs. Ollie Lucila Koehler, 78, attorneys for Mrs. Anna Hahn, 31-year-old German-born blonde, went to court today to argue a motion for a bill of particulars on indictments charging her with slaying two elderly men.

The defense also sought court appointment of an expert to analyze substances taken from the body of George Gellman, 67, and asked evidence which, Attorney Joseph Hoodin said, police took from the homes of Gellman and Mrs. Hahn.

The comely blonde is charged with poisoning Gellman and Jacob Wagner, 78, in what Prosecutor Dudley M. Outcall termed one of the "biggest mass murders in this country."

Charge Former Butler Athlete Killed Child

Hendersonville, N. C.—(P)—A special guard remained today at the hospital bedside of 28-year-old T. D. Hazelwood, former Butler university athlete, charged with ravishing and slaying his young stepdaughter, Gloria Hauser.

The body of the 12-year-old girl, Coroner Bruce Cox said, was found about 50 feet from the bottom of a 120-foot ravine near here, Tuesday, Hazelwood, found near the scene in an apparently dazed condition, has been under treatment for mental shock.

The coroner said Hubert Barnett, an oil company salesman, and Everett Williams, a truck driver, found Hazelwood crawling from the edge of the ravine on his hands and knees, crying to them: "for God's sake, save my child!"

The Hazelwoods had stopped off here to spend a few weeks while en route from Miami Beach, Fla. Hazelwood is the third husband of Miss Dollman. Her first husband, Edgar Hauser, head of an Indianapolis building firm, was Gloria's father.

Fall Over Tow Rope Fatal to Aged Woman

Milwaukee—(P)—Injuries suffered when she stumbled over a tow rope between two automobiles as she crossed a street caused the death of Mrs. Mary Fischer, 80, today.

Mrs. Fischer suffered a fractured skull and internal hurts.

The drivers of the cars were charged with drunken driving. The police said the tow rope was 23 feet long, more than twice the legal maximum for such lines.

Worst Quake in 40 Years Greeted Shanghai Refugees As They Land in Manila

Manila, P. I.—(P)—Two sharp earthquakes threw Manila into darkness tonight in a terrifying welcome to American refugees arriving from war-torn Shanghai.

Manila residents fled from their homes and hotels into the darkened streets, where light wires lay in a tangled mess. Many fires started by the shocks, the worst in 40 years, added to the panic.

Several large buildings and a number of churches were damaged. Other major structures swayed noticeably. Many injuries but no deaths were reported during the confusion following the first shock about 8 p. m. The second tremor added new terror 20 minutes later. The shocks were felt at least 200 miles away.

Most terrified by the rumbling and shaking of the earth were the 376 refugees arriving aboard the President Jefferson to a supposed haven after their horrible experience in Shanghai.

One girl among a score of screaming refugee women and children undergoing rigid inspection in the customs house, cried:

"Is this another war?"

The refugees had scarcely landed when the quake struck. Delayed more than an hour and a half at the breakwater, many of the women refugees were tearful with joy as the liner pulled up to its pier. They had left a city of death behind and were greeted by the lively tunes of a United States army band and the blazing lights of Manila.

A score of more were still in the customs house when the quake struck. The building swayed and creaked and the welcoming lights blinked out. Terror reigned.

The refugees had landed amid considerable confusion, some of them carrying babes in arms and others nondescript baggage they had hurriedly thrown together before fleeing from Shanghai.

Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., and her son, Quentin, had hurried ashore under the escort of President Manuel Quezon's personal bodyguard and were whisked away in an automobile.

The composure of all was largely restored when the electric lights were turned on again. The main power line had blown out.

In the suburbs many large churches and buildings were damaged. The quake shook Baguio, summer capitol of the Philippines, 175 miles away.

Escollta, Manila's main street, was damaged greatly and plate glass windows of many leading stores were shattered.

The foundation of the Great Eastern hotel sank four inches below the pavement level. Guests fled in panic into the street, some in night clothes.

Hospitals treated many injured, including some hurt as crowds fled from movie houses.

Several water mains were broken, including one of the city's largest running across Ayala bridge. It fed the southern half of Manila.

No Peace Until Japs Have Chastised China Jap Premier Declares

Tokyo—(P)—Premier Prince Fumimaro Konoye today barred foreign intervention in the undeclared Sino-Japanese war and asserted any settlement must be made by China and Japan alone.

Such a settlement, he indicated, could not be made until Japan had chastised the Chinese army. He said the government had been compelled to abandon its previous attitude of passive defense and assume the offensive with the ultimate aim of effecting amicable relations between China and Japan.

The premier, in his second interview since assuming office, answered the question of third power intervention in the conflict with the statement it was most essential that China and Japan arbitrate their differences between themselves.

He declined to comment further on the British proposal to establish a neutral zone in Shanghai except to say his government's attitude had already been presented to the British by the foreign office.

This attitude was that the Chinese must first withdraw their troops before Japan could consider the British proposal.

China's Armies Move Forward on 3 Fronts To Eject Japs

LAUNCH OFFENSIVE

Attempt to Regain North China From Japanese Conquerors

BULLETIN
Peiping—Chinese armies were reported to have launched a general offensive on three fronts today to wrest north China from its Japanese conquerors.

Shanghai—(P)—United States naval authorities warned the Japanese fleet today they would allow no interference with navigation on the Whangpoo river as warships carried 1,000 American women and children to safety through a curtain of falling shrapnel.

It was the second time in as many days American officials had told the Japanese navy it must keep hands off the right of the United States to unrestricted use of the Whangpoo—the only avenue of escape for Americans and other foreigners fleeing the battle between China and Japan for Shanghai.

The Japanese navy, despite its rebuff yesterday, today asked United States naval officials to give Japan advance notice whenever they wished to navigate the Whangpoo after dark.

Admiral Harry E. Yarnell, commander-in-chief of the Asiatic fleet, was understood to have replied concisely that United States vessels would navigate the river whenever and however he desired without reference to anyone.

The admiral declared his ships would always execute normal navigation procedure and at night would take precautions to insure that required running lights were functioning.

Japs Repulsed
While their advance battalions held the Japanese along the banks of the Whangpoo in northeastern Shanghai, Chinese shore batteries repulsed a Japanese effort to land reinforcements at Liuhio, 12 miles to the northwest, for an attack from the rear.

The Japanese forces attempted to land from transports under cover of a warship bombardment but were compelled to return to their ships by the withering fire from the Chinese positions. Changsu, near Liuhio, was also subjected to a heavy Japanese naval bombardment but no attempt was made to land troops there.

Chinese were rushing reinforcements to the area in large numbers. At least three divisions were seen taking up positions in the Hungjiao area west of Shanghai. They included regular army troops from the provinces of Shansi, Kwangsi and Fukien.

The focal point of the seven-day old battle, however, was raging in the Hongkew and Yangtzepoo sectors of northeastern Shanghai.

Planes were sweeping both sectors as well as the industrial suburb of Pootung across the Whangpoo.

Because of the heavy fighting between shore batteries and Japanese warships in the Whangpoo, the Japanese navy undertook yesterday to close the Pootung side of the river to navigation and subject navigation on the Hongkew side to restrictions.

United States Consul General Clarence E. Gauss replied the United States could not permit such a move and today, 1,100 Americans made the precarious voyage to safety on the fire-swept river.

Steel Sprays Refugees
Chinese and Japanese warplanes duelled above the river and the big guns of the Japanese fleet threw shells after shells screaming over the heads of the fleeing Americans. Rapid-fire bursts from the Japanese anti-aircraft batteries sprayed in huge vertical cones and then rained down to churn the gloomy river.

On both banks of the Whangpoo crack divisions of the Chinese and Japanese armies were engaged in one of the greatest battles in the history of the far east. Military observers estimated that upwards of 150,000 troops were engaged, with

Racine Affirms Permit To Hold Spanish Picnic

Racine—(P)—The Racine park commission, acting with Mayor Roy Spencer, affirmed last night a permit granting the North American committee for the aid of Spanish Democracy the right to hold a picnic Sunday in a city park.

The commission's action came after several Racine religious and civic societies demanded that the permit be revoked, charging the committee sponsoring the picnic was communistic and that funds raised would be used to send war supplies to the Spanish loyalist cause.

"It is with great reluctance that we affirm the granting of this permit," George Sonnen, park board chairman, stated. "We shall see to it that in the future serious consideration is given before any permits are granted to any groups for the use of public parks."

Black Takes Oath of Office as Justice

Washington—(P)—Hugo L. Black's office disclosed today he had taken an oath of office as associate supreme court justice before Charles E. Pace, financial clerk of the senate.

Without ceremony, Pace administered the simple constitutional oath in the capitol last night after Black tendered formal resignation from the senate.

It was the same declaration required of all federal officers. It entitles Black to the $20,000 annual pay of a justice.

But the new justice will not exercise the authority of his office until he takes the judicial oath from Charles Elmore Cropley, clerk of the high court. This probably will not be

Accuses Sheriff Of Using Pressure To Get Confession

Harold Best's Attorney Wants Him Taken From Sheriff's "Influence"

Madison—(7)—Attorney Carl N. Hill demanded in a letter to Judge Jeremiah O'Neil of Crawford county today that his client, Harold Best, 15, held on a delinquency charge based on the slaying of his sister, Mildred, 11, be removed immediately from the jail at Prairie du Chien to "some home or institution where he will be free from malignant influences."

The defense attorney stated he could no longer tolerate without protest the further custody of the boy by Sheriff Oliver White, who arrested the youth following the shooting of his sister June 4 in the home of their uncle, Orla Shaw, at Soldiers Grove.

"As attorney I am convinced of his innocence," Hill said. "You appreciate, I know, the fact that he is a minor possessing little or no comprehension of his legal rights as an accused person; that because of his immaturity and inexperience he is not able to discern malignant or dishonest motives, if they exist, on the part of others who come in contact with him."

"Since June 5, 1937, Harold has been in the custody of Sheriff Oliver White of Crawford county. In statements which Harold has made to us, and as to which we have stenographic transcripts open to your inspection, Harold has informed us from time to time of various statements White has made to him on several occasions just prior to the alleged confessions of Harold."

"These statements and other information which we have gathered indicate very clearly to us that the means employed by Sheriff White to secure these alleged confessions from Harold are reprehensible in the extreme."

Three Confessions
In the seven weeks since the slaying, Sheriff White announced his prisoner confessed three times and twice retracted the confessions. The latest confession, he announced, was obtained last Monday, the youth allegedly declaring he shot his sister because she repulsed immoral advances.

Attorney Hill declared that the sheriff, to obtain these statements, "among other things, has told Harold that the authorities had footprints of him secured in the bedroom of Mildred at the Shaw home; that his attorneys could do nothing for him; that a lie detector machine used on him at Madison was no good; that if Harold would plead guilty he would be placed on parole."

"On Monday," Hill added, "Sheriff White induced Harold to call me at Madison on the phone and tell me that my services as his attorney were no longer needed, and that he had decided to plead guilty. I informed Harold in this telephone conversation that I would see him later."

The defense attorney also referred to difficulties he and his legal assistants have encountered at the Crawford county jail in their attempt to "protect this boy in his constitutional right to be represented by counsel." He objected to a purported statement by Sheriff White that he was in this case "only for the attorney fee involved," declaring "we are acting without compensation in this matter."

Says Son Is Innocent
Prairie du Chien—(7)—"I am sure of my son's innocence. Harold did not kill Mildred," Mrs. Bernice Best made the statements yesterday after visiting the jail cell of her son, 15-year-old Harold Best, whom Sheriff Oliver White said confessed the slaying of his sister, Mildred, 11.

"I am sure of his innocence," Harold's mother said. "My son has been held in jail for almost three months. He is alone; he has no one near him to help him; and it is only natural that he would develop a desire to get out of long confinement even by admitting a crime which he knew he did not do."

"They have told him that he was the only person who could be guilty; that he was alone with his sister in the house; and they have reconstructed the crime and told him that it must be true and so," Mrs. Best declared.

Mildred Best was found shot to death June 4 in the Soldiers Grove farmhouse of her uncle, Orla Shaw, where she and her brother had gone to live following the divorce of their parents two years ago.

Sheriff White, of Crawford county, said Harold signed a written confession last Monday after an empty rifle shell was found near a spot White said Harold designated in his story of how the crime was committed.

We've Just Begun to Fight Progressives Say
Washington, (7)—Five self-styled house Progressives said last night they have just begun to fight for objectives which failed in this congress because of their charged, "reactionary gentlemen, their corporations and allies who threaten American democracy."

"Anti-progressive forces have enabled the millionaire and billionaire families of America to avoid bearing their just share of the tax burden," the Progressives charged in a statement signed by Representatives Gerald J. Boyleau, Wausau, Wis.; Progressive, John T. Bernard, Eveleth, Minn.; Henry G. Teigan, Minneapolis, Minn., both Farmer-Laborites; John M. Coffey, Tacoma, Wash.; and Jerry J. O'Connell, Butte, Mont., Democrats.

Santander Appears Doomed for Fall as Insurgents Push Forward

Headaya, France, (Spanish Border)—(7)—Santander and the Spanish northwest today appeared doomed to a quick fall before Generalissimo Francisco Franco's columns, slowly but relentlessly advancing through rain and mud.

"It's only a question of days," said several French and Belgian citizens who arrived at Bayonne from Santander, last important city stronghold of the government in northwest Spain.

These refugees said famine faced the city because it was impossible to get food through the insurgent blockade of the port.

Today, Franco's troops pounded through a natural barrage of fog and rain for possession of the waterworks of the city at Arriola park. The Generalissimo's communiqué said his forces met strong resistance in all sectors on the Santander front, with government troops reinforced by thousands of men rushed from the Asturias. The insurgent Navarre brigade, the communiqué said, captured Santa Olalla, taking 150 prisoners.

The baldish, middle-aged insurgent chief himself visited his relentlessly advancing front, pleased by the now almost unopposed push toward the Spanish government's last city stronghold on the northern coast.

In less than a week of the insurgent offensive, Franco's commanders reported, Santander's outlying defenses in the tumbling terrain to the city's southwest had been virtually routed.

The drive yesterday was confined to infantry attacks against the last strands of the government's defense. Thick fog and a driving rain throughout the southern sector grounded the insurgent aerial armada and Franco's field guns were useless in the low visibility.

The insurgent operations were centered on two vital highways, the Burgos and Palencia roads, running north toward Santander, but the advance guard deployed on either side of the highways to wipe out Santander's dwindling forces.

Meanwhile, normal business activity within Santander had come to a tense halt. Shops and factories were closed and workers were urged to the fringes of the city to build last line fortifications against the advancing insurgents.

Order Further Inquiry In Michigan Killing

Lansing—(7)—Attorney General Raymond W. Starr announced today a one-man grand jury investigation into the murder of Richard Streicher, 7, victim of a maniacal knife, had been ordered at Ypsilanti by Washtenaw County Circuit Judge George W. Sample.

The child's body, stabbed 14 times in the head and chest, was found March 8, 1935, beneath a foot bridge in Ypsilanti. Scores of persons have been questioned by police without the discovery of a tangible clue.

Starr said no date had been set for the investigation.

The grand jury was called at the request of two Ypsilanti residents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry B. Baker. Starr said he had not been informed as to what was their connection with the case. They set forth in their petition that 25 months had elapsed since the gruesome crime without apparent headway toward its solution.

Officers of New Credit League to Plan Activities

Officers of the Outagamie chapter of the Wisconsin State Credit Union league will meet at the insurance building next Tuesday night to outline a program and arrange for regular meetings.

A majority of the 38 governors representing the 19 members of the Outagamie County Credit Union chapter met at the court house Monday night and adopted a constitution and by-laws. Officers of the county union elected were Arthur M. Kahler, of the Appleton postal credit union, president; Earl Kramer, of the Aid Association for Lutherans credit union, vice president; Margaret Hesterman, of the Scolding Locks credit union, secretary; and Peter DeLain, Tuttle Press, treasurer.

The Outagamie chapter is a recently organized body affiliated with the state and national organizations, both of which have their headquarters in Madison. The state organization embraces 486 credit unions.

The credit union movement began in 1923 and is for the purpose of making loans to members. Last year a business of $87,000,000 was done, and even in depression year losses were reported to be less than one-half of one per cent.

School May Offer Work in Pharmacy

Plan Survey on Proposed Supplementary Studies For Druggists Here

Edward J. Boberg of the Wisconsin State Board of Pharmacy will be in Appleton early in September to make a survey preparatory to the giving of a newly organized course of pharmaceutical instruction by the Appleton vocational school.

Local druggists were approached on the project last spring. Mr. Herb Hellig, director of the Appleton school, said, and the response was favorable.

The proposed course will be devoted to keeping pharmacists abreast of their profession, to increasing their efficiency and widening their outlook, thus raising the standards of the profession to a higher plane. The fact that the school is not a preparatory one of any kind, but a supplementary educational service for those already engaged in pharmacy, is emphasized.

Among the subjects pharmacists have suggested are interprofessional relations, vitamins, laws and regulations, sulphanilamide, knowledge of merchandise, allergy, newer remedies, public health studies, drug store advertising and recent trends in pharmacy.

This service is made possible through a fund allotment to try the plan for one year, and the cost to the pharmacist will be practically nothing.

Koopke Bros. construction crews shifted from Morrison street to Packard street today where curb and gutter will be installed from Richmond street to Badger avenue. WPA crews are removing old curb and gutter and replacing it at the extreme west end of College avenue in preparation for the resurfacing project expected to start soon.

National Schemes Of Crop Control Injure Planters

Economic Laws Know No Boundaries, Babson

BY ROGER BABSON

Babson Park, Mass.—Down in deep Dixie the field hands are now picking the fourth largest cotton crop in history. After two poor harvests in 1934 and 1935 and with only a mediocre crop in 1936, this big 1937 growth should be welcomed. Because of the big world yield, however, the price of cotton has been falling so rapidly, that demands are pouring into Washington and forcing action to halt the decline. The highest prospective farm income since 1929 has not yet taken the farm problem out of the political arena.

Frankly I feel that planters would have no cause for complaint about their prices this year if mother nature had not been tampered with during recent seasons. While the preplexed Dixie mules gingerly plowed down every third row of cotton, Egypt, Brazil, India, Russia and China were urging their farmers to raise cotton. While our cotton crops were 30 per cent below par and our cotton exports were at the lowest ebb in years, a cotton-raising boom was on overseas. We disregarded the fact that the price of Texas cotton is not dictated by the size of the American crop nor the demand of New England mills.

Cotton is an international commodity. Its price depends on the size of Brazilian, Egyptian and American crops and the demand of the Manchester, Osaka, Milan, and Fall River mills. Our AAA program, like every nationalistic policy, was basically unsound because it forgot that economically all countries are one. The United States cannot control world cotton, wheat, or gold prices any more than Georgia, Kansas or Nevada can control the United States price of these commodities. National boundaries mean no more to economic laws than state boundaries. Now with our excellent 1937 crop, about 40 per cent of which must be sold abroad, we find the way to our old markets blocked by foreign cotton.

Lower Price Is Result

The inevitable result is a lower world price for the new crop.

This outcome, however, was not unexpected. Other countries had tried similar schemes and failed. Britain and rubber, Cuba and sugar, Brazil and coffee were all good examples of the futility of crop control. Nature would have wiped out the cotton surplus in her own way. Actually it took the drought to clean up the job in the end. The south's agricultural problem is basically deeper than too much cotton. It is lack of proper diversification of crops. Cotton has been over-emphasized at the expense of other products. The south realizes this and her agricultural bureaus are now encouraging diversification. But at the moment all eyes are focussed on "King Cotton."

Cotton consumption seems to follow a two-year cycle. The 1936-37 season was a record for cotton use. So unless business is tremendously good it looks like the next twelve months will be the "off" season. If that's the case, cotton will be in a weaker position statistically and without interference the price might go still lower.

Actually the best thing for the south is to let the price seek its own level. However something apparently had to be done politically to help "the planter." An "out-right subsidy" rather than a "pegged" price is preferable. The American price should be allowed to work along with the world price. Lower quotations will help consumption and they are the only means by which we can gain back our lost export markets.

3 Million Bale Gain

The government reckons this year's American crop at 15,500,000 bales—an increase of 3,000,000 bales over the 1935 figure. It also predicts a jump of 1,000,000 bales to a record total of 15,500,000 bales for 1937. This means a world crop of 35,000,000 bales! America's output will represent 44 per cent of the world crop against 63 per cent in 1931 while Brazil, for instance, will produce 5 per cent as compared with 2 per cent six years ago! Despite the "2-year cycle"

"Dog Days" Here but Don't Mean Much, Alderman Says

"Dog days," when youngsters are supposed to avoid the water for swimming purposes, are here, but their presence is not important, according to Alderman Lawrence McGowan, chairman of the common council recreation committee.

During the period, according to the old superstition, dogs are supposed to go mad at random and the water is supposed to be unsafe for swimming.

It is a scientific fact that more people are bitten by dogs in August than other months, but there is no evidence to support the theory that there are more rabid dogs during that time, the alderman said.

Officials of the federal bureau of animal husbandry assert that the various laboratories receive more heads of dogs for tests in August than in other months but no more cases of rabies are found than in other months.

Some dog fanciers believe that the warm weather of August may have a tendency to make dogs more excitable and hence more liable to snap at people.

As to the possible effect of the period on the purity of the water, that, too, is wrong. The alderman admits that in warmer weather the water, particularly in Lake Winnebago and the Fox river, becomes more or less covered with a green algal or scum.

The material lessens the pleasure of swimming, especially for sensitive persons, but it has no effect on the water's purity.

They testified John Larkin, chairman of the employees representation plan, sent them, and that he once told them they "could have hit" an organizer and left him in the woods.

After they "got" the organizer, Moore said, he stayed away from work for several days but his next pay check was larger than usual.

better consumption will do its share in cleaning up the 1937-38 crop. The improvement in world demand last year was 3,600,000 bales. In all 31,000,000 bales were consumed. With business heading toward prosperity another substantial gain in cotton use is possible.

Even if the current drop in price of cotton continues it will not hurt us in the long run. It will help to prevent excessive plantings next year which high prices for this season's cotton would inevitably have brought on. Good crops at medium prices produce greater prosperity for EVERYONE than short crops at high prices or big crops at low prices. There are thousands of towns through the south whose livelihood depends not on the price of the crop alone, but on the volume and the price. Warehousemen, ginners, exporters, commission merchants, field hands, and the like are set up to handle bumper crops, not short crops. They are all rejoicing over the first good harvest in five years.

The attitude of those who want crop control is easy to understand. Planters and farmers say to me "corporations have been controlling output for years. When inventories get too heavy, you simply shut down your factories. You do not make your products at a loss." That, of course, is true. Manufacturers then close up shop and lay off their people. The industrialists, however, do not ask federal subsidies for their closed factories nor do they ask for pegged prices. "No," my farm friends reply, "but manufacturers peg prices by boosting tariffs to keep out cheaper foreign goods. This encourages other countries to plant their own cotton and wheat thus cutting down the demand for our products."

This argument brings me back to my earlier statement that economically there are no boundaries. The only possible way crop control might be successful is if the cotton and wheat crops of all countries could be controlled by an international board. But, of course, with nationalism running wild such thoughts are now fantastic. In the long run, any national crop control scheme harms rather than helps the planter and the country. Meanwhile cotton income should be satisfactory this year without price-pegging. The 1936 crop brought in less income than this year's harvest will produce if the price averages 10 cents!

Bargaining Begun By Mechanics and Car Dealers Today

Progress Made in Session Before Member of Labor Board

Bargaining between auto dealers and striking auto mechanics began at the city hall this morning with H. Herman Rauch, regional director of the Wisconsin Labor Relations board, presiding. "Progress is being made and there are prospects of settlement," Rauch said.

Following the decision of union representatives yesterday to bargain individually with the dealers, negotiations were begun today with the Tri-city Motors, Inc., Neenah and Appleton, with other auto dealers witnessing the proceedings.

Fourteen car dealers attended a meeting at the city hall yesterday and nine of them agreed to bargain with the union as they believed the majority of men employed in their shops were members of the Mechanics and Mechanics union, local No. 747. The other five said they did not believe the union had a majority in their shops and it was referred to the labor relations board to determine their status.

DeWall, a taxi driver, was accused of traveling 35 miles per hour on S. Mason street early today and was fined $10 and costs with an alternative of 29 days in the county jail by Judge Thomas H. Ryan. Judge Ryan fined Bray, who pleaded guilty of going 26 miles an hour on S. Onondaga street yesterday afternoon, $10 and costs with an alternative of 29 days in the county detention camp. Both men were arrested by Appleton police.

Cowboys Stage Sit Down Strike—They Want Beer

Melrose, Mont. —T—It was hot and dusty in the Stroh ranch corral and the cowboys were thirsty. Somebody suggested a barrel of beer and said it was his opinion that the neighboring rancher would "set up the house."

But it was a long drive to town and the rancher said he reckoned the gentlemen of sun and saddle leather would have to get along with just plain water.

And so was born the first sit down strike of rangeland. It lasted an hour while mediators mediated but in the end the cowboys gained only an hour's loaf and went back to work thirsty as ever.

Births

A son was born Tuesday to Mr. and Mrs. Leo Collman, Peshtigo. Mr. Collman is a former Appleton resident.

A son was born yesterday to Mr. and Mrs. George West, Kimberly, at St. Elizabeth hospital.

Expect New Attendance Record at State Fair Opening Tomorrow

Milwaukee—(P)—Wisconsin agriculture and industry will go on parade again tomorrow when the eighty-seventh annual Wisconsin state fair gets under way for a nine-day period.

It will be the first time a fair has run for more than a week, opening Saturday and extending through Sunday, Aug. 29. Attendance records, which have been shattered for the last four years, are expected to reach new highs this year with two additional days, including two Sunday dates.

Fair officials said there will be much to see at this year's exposition. They pointed out that the state is in the midst of a good harvest and in the midst of a good harvest.

City Blocked Again in Move to Get Utilities

Superior—(P)—Another hurdle was set up in Superior's protracted procedure for acquiring its three utility plants when the local federation of labor made a demand that an offer submitted by the company last January be not accepted without a vote by the people. The company halted proceedings that were under way by offering to sell for $51,100,000. In 1922 the people voted down a company offer of $3,115,000 and while the city administration seemed disposed to accept the company proposal controversy has waged over the discrepancy in the prices. The city council voted $500 to print newspaper advertisements explaining details. The Evening Telegram, which has been questioning the propriety of paying the company's price now, announces that it will refuse the money for the ads but will print them free rather than take cash needed for teachers' and city payrolls which at present the city is unable to meet.

Veterans to Attend Reunion at Waupaca

Many members of the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and Spanish War Veterans will go this Sunday to Waupaca to participate in a reunion at the Wisconsin Veterans Home. The reunion, at Rainbow lake, near Waupaca, will have as its principal speaker Governor LaFollette.

The drum and bugle corps of the Oney Johnston Squadron 38, Sons of the American Legion, will take part in the celebration. They will meet at 8 o'clock Sunday morning at the Appleton high school where transportation will be provided. The corps will put on their part of the program at 10 o'clock, and spend the rest of the day at Waupaca where swimming and a boat ride on the chain of lakes is planned for them. They will return to Appleton Sunday evening.

Steel Strike Retarded Iron Works Production

Strikes in the steel industry have retarded the Northern Boiler and Structural Iron Works from having one of its best years since 1929, a company official said yesterday. As it is, the year will still be a good one, slightly above normal. Steel deliveries, after being very spasmodic because of the strikes, are now almost normal.

A new welding machine has been installed in the shops, and a 1,000 pound truck put in service. The buildings have recently been painted.

He was married to Louise Hoffensperger in 1884 at Darby, and three years ago they celebrated the golden wedding anniversary. He was a member of the Sacred Heart church, of the Catholic Knights of Wisconsin, and of the Holy Name society.

Survivors are the widow; two daughters, Mrs. F. V. Hauch, and Mrs. Martin Dietzler, both of Appleton; three sons, Frank M., Du-luth, Minn., Leo J., Appleton, Raymond S., Kaukauna; one brother, John, Appleton; three sisters, Mrs. Martin Weyenberg, Appleton, Mrs. Steven Dietzler, Kimberly, and Mrs. Michael Kortenhof, Darby; 15 grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Funeral services will be held at 8:45 Monday morning at the residence and at 9 o'clock at the Sacred Heart church with Father F. L. Ruessman in charge. Burial will be in St. Joseph's cemetery, Appleton. The Catholic Knights of Wisconsin will hold a prayer service at 8 o'clock Saturday evening, and the Holy Name society will say prayers at 7:30 Sunday evening. The body will be at the residence from Saturday afternoon until the time of the funeral.

Third Party Strategy Occupies Minnesotans

Washington—(P)—Third party strategy occupied a small group of Minnesota Farmer-Laborites in congress today as they explored the possibilities of a national political movement, which Senator Ernest Lundeen predicted would "certainly be in the field in 1940."

Broad outlines of the plan probably will take more concrete form, Lundeen said, at a conference here within 10 days after adjournment of congress. Lundeen said he could not disclose the identities of conferees at this time.

In discussions with some Farmer-Labor house members, Lundeen and his colleagues voiced sentiment the Minnesota third party movement should be expanded nationally. Lundeen said it is hoped to make a first showing in the 1938 congressional races.

He made it clear that advocates of the third party movement expected to enlist the liberals of all political parties.

Sheriff's Office Empties as Tear Gas Bomb Explodes

There was no danger of anyone working overtime yesterday in the sheriff's office at Waupaca, for a tear gas bomb which was accidentally exploded about 4:30 in the afternoon cleared the office of both workers and visitors in record time. The sheriff's office received a shipment of tear gas bombs yesterday, and while examining one of them Traffic Officer Earl Polzin accidentally discharged it. The fumes which spread rapidly and lingered for some time made it impossible for anyone to enter the office for the rest of the day.

Nab New Suspect For Questioning About Sex Crime

Milwaukee Police Say Man Denies He Was Near Beach Girl Visited

Milwaukee — (P)—A 44-year-old man, owner of handkerchiefs which the authorities said were identical with that found at the spot where Joyce Roberts' ravished and strangled body was thrown, was questioned about the child's death today.

Deputy sheriffs arrested the suspect as he sold ice cream bars on a street corner last night. The arrest followed weeks of painstaking search of laundries for some clue to the handkerchief's owner.

Questioned by District Attorney Herbert J. Steffes, the suspect denied knowledge of the 11-year-old girl's murder. Steffes ordered him detained for further investigation.

Joyce's body was found July 31 in the Little Menomonee river north of the Milwaukee county line. Nearby, in a clump of bushes, was found the white, blue-bordered handkerchief upon which the letter "B" was embroidered.

For three weeks deputy sheriffs checked laundries in the hope of obtaining information about its owner. Finally a white girl employed in a Chinese laundry on the west side recalled that a man had been bringing in similar handkerchiefs.

The deputies learned the man had left his west side rooming house hurriedly on the day of the murder, without paying his rent. The landlady said he had not returned.

Deputy Sheriffs Edward Siepmann and Theophilus Szwedkowski said baggage the man left in his room contained several handkerchiefs exactly like the one found at the murder scene.

The authorities said the slayer was fat, had thinning hair and was about 45 years old. The suspect weighs about 200 pounds, wears shell-rimmed spectacles and his hair is rather thin.

The suspect told Steffes he had never been to McKinley beach, from which the slayer, enticed Joyce, and said he had not driven an automobile since he sold his car last June. The authorities said they believe the slayer drove Joyce from the beach to the lonely spot in Ozaukee county where her body was found.

Superior Police Get Back Salary Reductions

Superior — (P)—Circuit Judge W. R. Foley granted judgments yesterday to three former policemen and the widow of an officer who sued for back salary reductions.

Judge Foley decided the city council had failed to obtain sanction of the police and fire commission in reducing salaries in 1932, making the reductions illegal. The judgments called for payments of $5,224.

City Attorney Maynard Berglund said he would ask the city council to decide whether the decision should be appealed to the supreme court. More than 50 other policemen have also entered claims for refunds.

driver of the third machine in the accident, also escaped injury. The injured were taken to St. Elizabeth hospital.

Raymond Halbach, St. John suffered a head injury when the car he was driving and a threshing machine owned by Herman Hoffensperger, Sherwood, collided on Highway 114 about three miles west of Sherwood about 7:15 this morning. Both machines were traveling west, and the Halbach machine tipped over after the crash, it was reported. The rear of the threshing machine and the car were badly damaged. Halbach was taken to St. Elizabeth hospital.

Dr. W. J. Frawley, 721 Front street, escaped with a minor cut on the face, and Miss Mary Lou Ebben, 108 E. Hancock street, suffered a leg injury in an accident about 9 o'clock last night on Highway 10 between Appleton and Waverly beach. The cars involved were driven by Dr. Frawley and Lloyd Thompson, 321 E. Brewster street. Miss Ebben was a passenger in the Thompson car which was going north, and the Frawley car was traveling south, it was reported to Winnebago county police.

NAVAL VESSELS TO BRAZIL

Washington will do well to examine with great scrutiny the proposal presented to congress but a week ago to turn over to Brazil six of our decommissioned naval vessels of the destroyer class.

In the first place the London Naval Treaty must be considered. It provides:

"No high contracting party shall by gift, sale or any mode of transfer dispose of any surface vessels of war or submarine in such a manner that such vessel may become a surface vessel of war or submarine in any foreign navy."

Washington proposes by a little slick construction to avoid our plain obligations under this treaty. It will draw an agreement with Brazil whereby that nation, which has so many broken agreements it cannot count them, will emphatically declare that it leases these destroyers only for training purposes, never to make them a part of its fighting forces, and faithfully and promptly to return them if and when it goes to war with a country with which we are at peace.

Our Secretary of State, we believe, has written some excellent trade agreements. But there is not one word in the proposed transaction with Brazil that is subject to a practical enforcement, or that that nation would even consider obeying if the flames of war started to consume South America.

Every naval vessel is used for the innocent purpose of training its personnel in times of peace and although the agreement could be so drawn that in a technical sense our vessels would never become part of the Brazil navy because title would still rest at Washington, yet they would be manned by Brazilians and the ammunition they carried would belong to Brazil, and if a naval battle appeared on the horizon how would the enemy avoid engaging them unless we painted them from stem to stern "Property of the U.S.A.", something in the way shoe repairing machinery used to be sold?

And yet these stumbling questions that will arise are the least of the probable difficulties.

Argentina has indicated that the proposition is disturbing to it. Why should its neighbor, Brazil, be so suddenly augmenting its naval forces? Every South American country must be concerned. Rivalry and jealousy are intense below the equator. Paraguay and Bolivia are not the only South American states that throw dynamite.

The proposal carries implications of a much more serious and important nature than have apparently been considered.

Brazil is not a democracy, except for occasional spells. It is hot-headed and revolutionary to such an extent that rarely do more than four years pass without extensive outbreaks, often successful after sanguinary street fighting, in scuttling the existing government and inaugurating a new one.

How much interest have we, or should we take, in maintaining the stability perhaps of some despotism by providing enough naval vessels to make rebellion impossible of success?

But there are supporting reasons advanced, reasons whispered in the cloak-rooms, reasons it would not be so diplomatic to discuss in public else we might make enemies.

Yet these are the very reasons that must be instantly submitted to pitiless public analysis because they are so often misleading when they are not downright false.

Brazil implies that it is "particularly apprehensive" of practically inclined nations that have viewed its great potential or undeveloped wealth with hungry eye. Russia, Japan, Italy and Germany thus come under scrutiny. But Russia is afraid to get out of her own back yard. And Japan is up to her neck in blood in China. So we may scrutinize Italy and Germany a little closer. These two countries have sent great droves of immigrants to Brazil. And there the evidence stops.

That is a pretty thin dossier of evidence upon the basis of which to violate the London Naval Treaty, and thereby paralyze ourselves from protesting the violation of it by others. It is a mighty slim reason for this country, not yet certain how to define neutrality, to take an important step that may radically limit the definition of that word as we may find it necessary to apply it in the future. If we accept cloak-room whispers, that South American governments are in danger from rapacious European tyrants, what shall we say of this first fruit of the Roosevelt abandonment of the Monroe Doctrine except that the alteration of the course we have maintained for 120 years was an invitation to hungry European nations to attack South American states? Congress must proceed slowly with this intricate proposition. It should shelve the matter unless wholly satisfied that no shadow will be cast to confuse us in the future.

The more it examines into this question, considers the diverse and entangling interests of many other South American states, the more likely it will conclude that the proposal presents danger to all and certainly no advantage to America.

ANOTHER SLIVERED YARDSTICK

The Tennessee Electric Power Company, a privately owned public utility, petitioned the Tennessee Public Utilities Commission for authority to build a $2,000,000 generating plant in the very area of the Tennessee Valley Authority, National Yardstick No. 1.

In order to obtain the permit from the Commission it was necessary for the Power Company to satisfy the members of the commission that it could effectively produce electric current in competition with the government.

Engineers of high quality and experience so swore. The commission adopted their opinion.

Now, when a government proceeds to spend public moneys with a statement that it can furnish electric power cheaper than a private utility a fair conclusion is not readily to be arrived at simply because the government, that is the men temporarily in power, may be actuated by political and personal motives, and since they do not themselves furnish the money which actually is taken from every taxpayer's pocket, there is little of certainty in the situation.

But when individuals say to a commission they will put 2 million dollars on the table and spend it in constructing a generating plant because they think they can outdo the government, even if the latter has written off tens of millions on the ground it was spent improving water-courses instead of building electric plants, it is time at least to take notice because the power company is not spending the taxpayer's money.

The matter should not be slurred over quickly because it contains perhaps the seed of a great truth.

The power company wants to build a "steam generating plant" and the evidence of its engineers was to the effect that electric current may be generated cheaper through steam than through water-power.

That is going to be a hard political pill to swallow. Thirty years ago private power companies had their eye on waterpower. It seemed to them, and the public drank the story readily, that water-power, more or less a creature of nature, and working night and day, could produce electric current cheaper than it could be produced after paying tremendous coal bills. But such appears not to be a fact. Perhaps the truth has made itself evident only after a great deal of experience.

Anyway, the government started pursuing waterpowers, and for this purpose enacted many laws to prevent waterpowers from falling into the hands of private interests, or compelling those interests after a period ranging from 20 to 50 years to turn them over to the public. Now the public may find, because it cannot switch the current of its thoughts as quickly as private companies, that the government has "a pig in a poke."

The terrific cost of erecting hydro-electric power plants, the equally heavy expense of buying the great stretches of land affected by the alternating lowering and raising of the water, the cost of purchasing all "riparian rights" and the further cost of constant overlooking and upkeep have, combined, made waterpowers anything but attractive.

Of course, there will be such water powers where the force of the waters may be easily harnessed and the electric power produced and delivered at a reasonable cost, but engineers of high standing have looked agast at the political engineers hired to say "Yes, yes" and the way they have poured the people's money into projects that can never be self-supporting.

Omens are not judgments. Signs sometimes mislead. But when you find a power company willing to spend its money because convinced it can defeat a power company under political control, and equally willing to compete with steam electricity against water electricity, you have enough before you to make you sit up and take notice.

Opinions Of Others

NEGLECT TRAGEDY

A temporary power line was installed at the outskirts of the municipal airport at Dayton, Ohio. Officials of the port say they were not informed of its presence. Pilots of planes using the terminal were not informed. Result: Four killed, five injured in Tuesday's crash of a passenger plane.

If not informing the air authorities and obtaining their approval in advance, those who set up the thing hazard bare responsibility. But should not a watch at the port have noted the erection of a heavy power line? Words too severe cannot be found to express the condemnation such gross neglect requires.—Detroit News.

IN a communication a few days ago, Ezekiel Sobolus, of the Pumpkin Center Sobolus, asked me to tell him about the Green Mountain boys of Vermont, with especial emphasis on whether Vermont was talking "of seceding from this Democratic Union."

Now this all may come as a great disappointment to you—I know it did to me—but I looked through Vermont for something odd in manners, habits and activities of the Green Mountain boys and failed to get anywhere.

The Green Mountain boys act and look pretty much like the Fox River-Valley boys, and the boys along the Mohawk, and the boys in Massachusetts, and the boys in Michigan, and the natives of northern Illinois.

It may come as a great surprise to learn that there are schools, paved streets, traffic lights, American Legion parades, highway markers, hitch-hikers, WPA projects (as I wrote to Stoo), tap rooms, and billboards in Vermont.

The people do not drive as willy-nilly as they do in these parts, but that may be because of the hills, curves and mountains (although Vermont's speed laws are like Wisconsin's), and the fact that you do not have to drive all day to get somewhere.

If there are fundamental differences between the Vermont people and the people out here, I could not see them. Of course, I did not stop to psychoanalyze a Vermont, and held conversation with only two of them: the waiter in Burlington, and the filling station attendant in Barre.

Even the sight of the Wisconsin license plate on the family hack did not cause the Barre filling station man to send for the police or for the above-mentioned American Legion contingent that was drilling down the street. The filling station man talked with a New England accent—which is a pleasant accent and is probably as reasonable as the way we talk around here—and told me the car needed a quart of oil. Even as filling station attendants elsewhere.

Why, I can remember crossing Lake Champlain on a ferry to Burlington and admiring the billowing clouds over the Vermont shoreline, and wondering, when I saw the officer standing at the ferry exit whether I would have to produce a passport.

And all he did was direct traffic.

Going into New Hampshire the same afternoon I wondered whether the Democrats would be waiting at the border to give me the third degree.

All we did was cross a bridge and make a left turn. It was as easy as that.

Taking everything into consideration, Zeke, I am beginning to think that we have been kidded a little about Vermont. There were no rebel troops drilling out in the open. It is a very pretty state, and very old, and it has a certain dignity, what with its mountains.

Maybe there is more to it all than meets the eye. Keeping the car on the road detracts from any effort to sound out the natives.

But the scenery is fine, the towns are pleasant, and the distances are short. You ought to visit Vermont, Zeke.

A Verse for Today

By Anne Campbell

I THINK OF YOU

When in the sky the first faint hint of blue
 Trembles and sends the last star scurrying,
 Drowsing, I hear the waking robin sing,
 And think of you.

Noon sounds its golden trumpet. . . . I pursue
 A dozen tasks I cannot put aside;
 And with a singing heart and mounting pride,
 I think of you.

The sky is pearly and the evening dew
 Falls on the rose. Now shadows drown the day,
 And loneliness I wait, with you away,
 And think of you.

Personal Health Talks

MORE DIETETIC BREVITIES

Olive oil, butter, animal fats, cream, bran, yolk of egg in the diet favor drainage of the gall-bladder and gallducts in case you have gallstones or chronic cholecystitis or cholangitis. But wait a minute. These same foods tend to increase pain from contractions of the gall-bladder if you are subject to colic. This is all I can tell about it. In general, one with chronic gall-bladder trouble, with or without gallstones, should include a liberal variety of fresh vegetables, fresh fruits and reasonable amounts of oils or fats in the diet. There is no reason to imagine oils or fats cause or aggravate the trouble, except as above explained. Nor is there any foundation for the queer notion that huge doses of oil can or will "dissolve" or eliminate gallstones in any case. The individual with chronic gallbladder trouble should drink plenty of water, before meals, with meals, between meals.

Water with meals unnecessarily worries many valetudinarians. The invalid should be guided by his physician's advice, but normal persons may take a drink of water as cool as they like whenever they feel thirsty. A glass of cold water just before a meal tends to improve digestion, especially if one is at all thirsty. Generally the only health rule that applies is that water or other beverage should be taken as a beverage, never to wash down morsels of food. Eat when you eat and drink when you drink. No dunking allowed.

The American breakfast, if it includes any ready-to-eat or home cooked cereal, is all right if there is no toast, roll, bread, cake, waffle or other carbohydrate course in addition to the dish of cereal. The breakfast is all right, I mean, if the coffee isn't ruined. If you can smell the coffee before it is served, it is ruined—it has been permitted to boil. Breakfast isn't breakfast without coffee. Don't bother me with your silly questions about nerves.

Popular idea that hot meals are better for health than cold meals. Nothing in it. I'm telling, not arguing.

Canned food fit to eat when the can is first opened is still fit to eat next day if it stands in the can—it keeps as well and remains as wholesome in the can as it would in any other container. Any suggestion to the contrary is an alibi for poor food.

If you crave ice-cream after lobster, don't let any long-faced wretch persuade you to forego the pleasure. Any conceivable mixture or combination of foods one fancies is perfectly healthful.

There is no nutriment in an egg, and it matters little how you prefer egg cooked. Suit your own taste always. Raw eggs are not so completely digestible as cooked eggs; some of the albumen of the raw egg is likely to pass thru the alimentary tract undigested; hence raw egg, if anything, is less nourishing or "strengthening" than egg cooked as you like. Meat well done is at least as easily digestible as rare meat. Suit your own preference about that, too, providing the meat does not contain trichina or tapeworm larvae. Thorough cooking is the best safeguard against that.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Kidneys

Are liberal amounts of dried fruits and acid fruits hard on the kidneys? Are fruits or fruit juices harmful or beneficial to the kidneys as a rule? S. A. J.

Answer—They are not hard on the kidneys. As a rule fruits or fruit juices are rather beneficial to the kidneys.

Numbness in Arms and Legs
 Please tell me what causes numbness in my hands and arms and sometimes in my legs. . . . low blood pressure. . . . the critical age for women. . . . Mrs. M. C. W.

Answer—Without examination of course I have no idea. Often women of your age complaining of such symptoms suffer from moderate vitamin deficiency over a prolonged period of years. They find considerable relief by supplementing their diet with daily rations or vitamins B, D and G. As for the critical age for women—there is no reason to regard forty or fifty as more critical than any other age.

Your Birthday

"LEO"

If August 21 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:45 a. m. to 12:45 p. m., from 2:45 to 4:45 p. m., and from 7:45 to 9:45 p. m. The danger periods are from 8:45 to 10:45 a. m., from 5:45 to 7:45 p. m., and from 9:45 to 11:45 p. m.

The average person may be in a peculiar mood this day, so be sure you do not confuse facetiousness with seriousness. In your social contacts it might be good judgment to keep your conversation free from depressing remarks. Depth of affection will be difficult to suppress this day, which perhaps will account for someone near and dear to you being unusually demonstrative.

Alcoholism will act as a wet blanket on good spirits and social activities, so avoid assuming this attitude if you wish to enjoy the day. What might appear to be a feast to the eyes is liable to be an abomination to your stomach, so be careful to dine wisely and not too well.

Gluttony is one of this day's evils that must be suppressed. The digestive tract is likely to suffer from any abuse it is subjected to. Married and engaged couples, as well as those considering a matrimonial possibility must try to appreciate suggestions made for their entertainment.

If a woman and August 21 is your birthday, you may be rather impatient, especially in matters involving the heart. You are inclined to want your own way in your home, and may try to regulate the conduct of others outside of it. To succeed and be popular, overcome this trait.

You can, with little effort, win many friends and become socially prominent. If you cultivate the habit of being an optimist, your chances for success in any field of endeavor seem to be excellent. As a teacher, secretary, interior decorator, artist, writer, business executive, or broker, your income is likely to be large. If you rule your husband and home with a gentle hand, your married life ought to be a happy one.

Seen And Heard In New York

BY GEORGE TUCKER

New York—Most of the stinging, critical barbs credited to Dorothy Parker and other town wits are not to be too much believed—they are usually the inspirations of professional gagwriters.

Nevertheless there are moments when the celebrities themselves outdo even the gagwriters, and this seems to be one of them.

Dr. Frank Black was giving an audition, and his usually limitless patience was wearing thin as the ham in a dime sandwich. Finally he interrupted an enthusiastic young tenor.

"What sort of singing is this?" Black inquired, gravely surveying the unabashed crooner.

"I'm the wandering minstrel type," he replied, "I sing as the wandering minstrels did of old."

"Then wander back on the right key," commented Black caustically. "You've been flat ever since you came in here."

Less caustic but equally enlightening was this episode, which transpired in Mickey Walker's pub near Madison Square Garden the other night.

Sunburned and rugged, Mickey was ambling through the stalls, chatting with guests, and eventually he came onto a fellow who had apparently been trying to drown himself in rum.

"You still here?" Mickey inquired. "Maybe you'd better go home and get a little rest."

"Whatcha mean trying to ease me out?" growled the sot, peering at the ex-champ through bleary eyes.

"Well," said Walker gently, "my bar-captain tells me you've had about 30 drinks. That's enough for any man."

"Shure, I've had 30 drinks," belated the fellow, "but a little matter like 30 drinks can't hurtcha. It's this steady drinking that gets a man down."

"Scram!" yelled Mickey, booting him out into Eighth avenue.

Harry Davies just called up the city editor. Harry is a p. a. and his job is to get Leon and Eddie's, a night club, mentioned as frequently as possible.

"I've got great news," he shouted. "It's colossal! It's the biggest thing I've ever done!"

"Calm yourself," suggested the city editor. "What's the story?"

Mr. Davies took a deep breath. "I've just become the father of twins!"

"So what?" said the c. e. wearily. "One out of every 88 births is twins."

Mr. Davies was depressed. But he hung on. "It's news, ain't it? It's sensational, ain't it? Say pal, couldn't you mention Leon & Eddie's in the story?"

The city editor wearily hung up. Meanwhile, Mr. Davies was phoning another city editor.

"I've got great news! Say, pal. . . ."

must not be indulged in having likes or dislikes, particularly if they involve school rules and discipline. It is most important that this youngster learns what the word obedience means, for any lack of it may handicap its future chances to succeed.

If a man, and August 21, is your natal day, you probably are generous, mentally well equipped, ambitious, and a shrewd trader. As a politician, lawyer, doctor, inventor, journalist, salesman, or publisher you ought to be a money-maker.

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington—Many a New Dealer has boasted that a major accomplishment of the Roosevelt regime has been the moving "of the real capital of the United States" from New York back to Washington.

Roosevelt partisans have declared that before "the New Deal returned the plain people to authority," New York's financial barons exercised a more or less invisible control of national governmental policies which they described as amounting to a "dictatorship for a privileged few."

With the Roosevelt "revolution" the less opulent South and West were said to have leaped into the political saddle—riding a strangely hybrid Democratic donkey with unwonted disdain of the once proud and politically powerful financial East.

New York Eclipsed

In the 1936 race for the Presidency, with its sharply divergent polls and prognostications of voter preference the political sharps as usual—excepting Mr. Farley, of course, a red-penciled New York state with its large electoral vote as a very possible determinant of who would be the winner.

But when the Roosevelt juggernaut rumbled to a new record in opposition-crushing, even the Empire States prestige as a political factor was eclipsed by a sweep that fastened the Democratic label on every state except Maine and Vermont.

But now New York has moved back into the very center of the political picture, with the prognostications predicting that the future of the New Deal may depend in large measure upon the outcome of the mayoralty fight in New York City.

They figure that if anti-Roosevelt Alfred E. Smith and Tammany Leader Christopher Sullivan win the mayoralty nomination for Senator Royal Copeland over Justice Jeremiah Mahoney, backed by New Deal Democrats, they might gain control of the entire party organization in New York City.

Even if Mayor LaGuardia, sympathetic to the New Deal, defeated Copeland in the finals, Smith and Sullivan might be able to retain control of the party organization in the city and take an anti-Roosevelt delegation to the 1940 Democratic convention.

Combined with conservative Democrats from the South, the Tammany delegation might make the going tough for any New Deal candidate for the Presidential nomination.

Too Soon To Predict

Such appraisal of the possible power of anti-Roosevelt forces at the next convention is predicated upon a sizeable contingent from the South being hostile to Mr. Roosevelt or any candidate he favored for the nomination.

Veteran politics, however, believe it is a bit premature to begin counting on formidable southern opposition to the President, particularly at a time when he may be preparing to give the go ahead signal on millions of dollars in loans to Dixie's cotton farmers.

Some old-line Democrats, who have no particular liking for the Copeland-Smith objectives, are fearful nevertheless that a second victory for Fiorello "Little Flower" LaGuardia might turn out to be a sprig of poison ivy for the Democratic party from a national standpoint.

The building up of a strong LaGuardia organization, combined with a continued split in the Democratic forces of New York City, might deprive the Democratic party of a long-time bulwark of strength in Presidential contests.

Between elections the tiger frequently has been looked upon as an unsuitable running mate for the donkey; but when that quadrennial crucial day in November rolled around, the tiger could almost invariably be counted upon for an effective vote-getting performance.

"If all these men are buying clothes, you must be giving them away"

That's the impression you are apt to get when you step into the store any of these hot afternoons.

Plant 100 Million Fish in Northeast Section of State

1937 Total for Wisconsin Exceeds Billion, MacKenzie Reveals

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison—More than 100 million fish, including all varieties of pike, perch, trout, muskellunge and others, have been planted in northeastern Wisconsin counties since January 1 of this year, according to the state conservation department.

The huge total represents about 10 per cent of the total plantings this year, which already runs well over one billion of all varieties, according to H. W. MacKenzie, director.

Largest planting in the northeastern section was in Shawano county which up to August 7 received 57,000,000 for its lakes and streams. They included more than a million young muskellunge, and 55 million wall eyed pike fry.

Stock Waupaca Lakes
Waupaca county lakes and streams have been stocked with about 3,500,000 to date, including Brown trout, wall eyed pike, northern pike, perch and muskellunge. Oconto county was planted with 8,000,000 including generous percentage of muskellunge, rainbow and brook trout.

Figures for other counties in the area are: Winnebago, 8,957,000, including wall eyed pike, northern pike and black bass; Door, 14,028,775, including 13 million wall eyed pike fry; Kewaunee, 1,807,225, principally wall eyed pike fry; Manitowish, 440,000, wall eyed pike and northern pike fry; and Marinette, 7,159,350, including a good share of brook trout fingerlings.

Planting will continue through the balance of the season, according to the conservation department, and the total distribution will exceed any previous record of fish propagation in the state.

4-H Club Members Get Entries Ready for Fair

Post-Crescent Oshkosh Bureau
Oshkosh—R. C. Heffernan, Winnebago county agent, announced today that Winnebago county boys and girls with agricultural exhibits should be getting their entries ready for the junior exhibit at the county fair, Aug. 31, and Sept. 1, 2, and 3. He said he would aid any members in preparing entries and urged all 4-H club members to exhibit their projects at the fair.

Plans for the dedication of the new warehouse of the Larsen Farmers' Co-Operative Aug. 28 are being completed, he said. A full day of entertainment is on the program. In the morning a 4-H club softball tournament will be held and clubs not yet entered, he said, should send their entries.

County Relief Costs Total $6,000 in July

Relief expenditures for Outagamie county totaled $6,078.99 during July, Miss Madlyn Newell, head of the central application bureau, said today. There were 316 cases receiving aid with 90 cases closed and 114 added.

The figure represents a decrease from July of last year when expenditures totaled $7,019.68 with 377 cases being carried, 110 closed and 69 added.

Hospitalization and burials last month cost $482.84 while the item totaled $611.22 in July, 1936. Miss Newell said the increase of new cases last month was the result of those opened for service only and there were about 80 opened for direct relief with the majority of them in the rural townships.

DISCUSS PRICES
A committee representing local retail grocers met with Miss Gladys V. Stolt and F. A. W. Hammond, officials of the Appleton Relief department, at the old post office building last evening. Food prices were discussed.

Position in Sequence Is Key to Bid Interpretation

BY ELY CULBERTSON
The meaning of a bid is qualified by its position in a bidding sequence. We all know that if our right-hand opponent opens the bidding with one spade and we immediately overcall in his suit with two spades, we are making the strongest possible call. Obviously, when we thus instruct partner that bidding must not be dropped until game has been reached, we must have a hand large enough to warrant that order. It is possible, however, to give the cue-bid in opponents' suit an entirely different function. Consider the defensive barrage laid down by East in the hand shown below.

North, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

♠ 8 6 4
♥ 7 5 4
♦ A 9
♣ A K 9 8 4 2

EAST
♠ A Q J 3 2
♥ A Q J 3 2
♦ Q J 10 6 4 3
♣ None

SOUTH
♠ A K 10 7 5 3 2
♥ 9 8 7

♣ J 10 6

The bidding:
North East South West
1 club 1 heart 1 spade 2 hearts
2 spades 3 diamonds 4 spades Pass
Pass 5 clubs 5 spades Pass
Pass Double Pass Pass

The bid on which I wish to put the spotlight is East's five club bid. It stopped the opponents dead in their tracks, even though they held the superior spade suit. Not only was the bid an effective defensive measure, calling for a club lead if the opponents persisted in spades, but, it should be noted, it was at the same time entirely safe. East had not shown great strength at his first opportunity. He had not cue-bid directly over North's club bid. Therefore he knew that West would not be unduly excited when, after the opponents had reached game, he made a cue-bid that was clearly en passant. After a heart raise from West, East certainly would have defended, in any event, with a five diamond bid. To interpolate five clubs cost nothing.

As may be seen, South was much on the spot after East signified that he could ruff an opening club lead. First, he did not know whether to believe East's statement or not. East might very well be fibbing, hoping that if the opponents believed he actually was void of clubs they might allow him to buy the contract at five-odd. As a matter of fact, East's bid turned out to be a two edged weapon.

On a club opening East-West secured two ruffs and two heart tricks. Had South elected to believe the cue-bid and pass, the result would have been even more satisfactory for East-West. West would have shown his support in East's second suit, diamonds, and five diamonds would have been ice cold against any defense.

The opportunity for this particular type of cue-bid is rare, but when it arises the device is highly effective.

TODAY'S QUESTION
Question: Is the double of an opening two trump bid for a take-out or for penalties?
Answer: This is a penalty double.

JO-JOTTE POINTER
Question: The other night my wife and I were playing Jo-Jotte and my wife bid out of turn. Outside of beating her, what are my rights?

Answer: I don't want to intrude on any family quarrels, but if you want the law in Jo-Jotte, it is: The irregular contract (or pass) is void, and the player whose turn it was to bid resume his turn. If he should pass, then the offender must repent the declaration which he previously made illegally.

Pirates of Days Gone By

V-JEAN LAFITTE
It seems strange to hear of a pirate who seldom sailed the sea, but that is what we are told of Jean Lafitte. For more than a century people have spoken of him as a pirate, but he spent almost all his life on dry land.

The captain gave Lafitte a letter. As a youth, Lafitte is said to have made an ocean voyage from France to New Orleans. His trade was supposed to be that of a blacksmith, but he earned most of his money by smuggling goods into New Orleans. He dealt with pirates, obtaining stolen goods. It seems clear that he sent pirate vessels out on trips to obtain booty, but he seldom, if ever, made such a journey himself.

Some distance below New Orleans was a kind of island in the midst of swamps and bayous. This island was Lafitte's headquarters for dealings with pirates. On it was a place called Grand Terre which contained about 40 poorly-built houses. Public auctions were held there, and they were attended by bargain hunters from different parts of Louisiana.

Toward the end of the year 1814 came an important event in La-

Radio Star Gives View On Beauty

BY ELSIE PIERCE
JEAN DICKENSON says "Be yourself as much as possible. Do not imitate anyone. Play up your own individuality."
She does it by plenty of soap, water and a complexion brush... also pure alboline instead of fanboi cold cream. Her make-up is light and natural as possible, a medium shade of rouge, rachel powder, medium lipstick, black mascara and brown eyeshadow.
Like most celebrities of screen or air, she uses sun glasses when her eyes are exposed to glaring light. When tired, the eyes are bathed in boric acid solution. Her recipe for preventing wrinkles lines and wrinkles is fairly simple: "I always go to sleep thinking of something pleasant... and I try to avoid over-use of facial muscles when awake."
If you are one who wears your emotions on your face, you are probably wearing your face into deep lines via emoting... so please read and reread Miss Dickenson's advice and then practice keeping your face as placid as possible. (This doesn't mean that you should look inanely expressionless... it merely means don't overdo on the grimaces.)
Miss Dickenson likes to have her hair washed and dried thoroughly without combing, then she has it set with water. She claims that this makes it softer. She goes on to say:
"Incidentally having my hair done is my greatest extravagance for I have it done very often."
Rubber Gloves on Fingers When Tinting Toes
When doing a pedicure at home, Miss Dickenson guards well-polished fingernails from polish remover by wearing rubber gloves. Also note the little toe guards separating the toes so that excess polish will not stick to the skin surrounding the nails. Those aren't extra toes you see in the picture—they are guards or "toesies." Incidentally the pedicure is now such an established fashion that long after beach days are over, and even if one isn't expecting to reveal tinted toes in dance sandals, I predict that toes will still be diligently tended and tinted (even if it is just for the purpose of satisfying one's own soul by having beautifully "done" toes playing peekaboo in toeless boudoir sandals.)
More: Miss Dickenson says, "I eat very little meat, fish and eggs; live mostly on fruits, vegetables, milk and light food. I do without proteins; it helps lessen chances of colds by reducing acidity."
My complete book, "Reduce by Diet" (Booklet 201) and "Reduce by Exercise" (Booklet 202) are yours for ten cents each. They cover the subject thoroughly. Send for them giving your name and full address to the Bell Library, care of the Appleton Post-Crescent, 247 West 43rd Street, New York, N. Y.

Michigan Surplus Is Higher Than Last Year
Lansing, Mich.—(P)—A survey by W. G. Stevenson, chief accountant of the state administrative board, showed today that Michigan started its new fiscal year last July 1 with $31,390,721.07 cash on hand, an increase of more than $3,000,000 over last year.

Stevenson said state revenue from all sources totaled $202,166,433.72, compared with disbursements of $195,636,693.77.

mental character is the same fine thing after their fathers and mothers lived by and passed along to them. They love their parents; they want to prove their loyalty to them, but there has to be a new meeting place for their minds, a new understanding of old loyalties.

"Could a father and mother train along with their growing children and so avoid the worst of this? And cannot the intelligent well-trained young people who owe their success to their fathers and mothers, find ways of adjusting some of the difficulties? It requires a delicate technique, but it ought not to be beyond a generation of young people such as ours. Youth must so forward. Age must remain content where it stands. It is for Youth to span the gap with affectionate understanding and loyalty."

Survey Shows 11 Months Ideal Betrothal Period

BY DOROTHY DIX
Are long or short engagements most conducive to matrimonial felicity? This is a question that is of profound importance to millions of bachelors and cooing love birds, but heretofore there has been no scientific data to show whether it was better to go through the linked sweetness of a long, drawn-out engagement that went on and on, or to make it snappy and get over with the wedding.

Usually the matter has been settled by circumstances, and determined by the size of the pocketbook of the high contracting parties, or by how many cocktails they have drunk. We have all known patient and faithful sweethearts who have waited ten years for their wedding day, and we have known swift workers who have married under strangers after a ten minutes' acquaintance in a night club and another round of drinks. And so the question of how long an engagement should be is left up in the air.

Now, however, the matter has been definitely settled by Dr. C. W. Hall, who conducts the popular marriage course at the University of Texas. He made an exhaustive study of 300 happy marriages and 300 marriages that ended in divorce, and announces that as the result of his investigation into the subject that the ideal engagement lasts eleven months and eleven days, while the betrothal period of unsuccessful marriages lasts two months and six days.

In other words, the safe course in courtship, as in all other things in life, is to take the middle road and be neither too precipitate nor too slow, and to put a time limit on an engagement that would enable a man and woman to get well acquainted with each other, but not to know each other too well.

Of course, there is nothing to be said in favor of the short engagement. Even their guardian angels turn aside and weep when a man and woman get married without taking time even to find out each other's middle names, or how they like their eggs fried for breakfast. It is taking a foolhardy chance at something that is full enough of risks at best. It is trusting to luck a venture that calls for all of the foresight and prudence and knowledge and judgment that you can put into it. And so it is no wonder that the marry-at-sight weddings so often end in Reno.

It is a little too late to find out after the deed is done that the investment into which you put your all has not a clear title; that your husband or wife has a past that will darken your future; that the golden locks are peroxide and the imposing presence just a stuffed shirt; the sweetness and amiability only a line and that you have undertaken to spend forty or fifty years with an individual with whom you have not a single taste or thought or sentiment or habit in common.

But if the too-brief engagement is loaded with TNT that generally blows a marriage to Kingdom Come, the too-long engagement is equally disastrous, because it only too often destroys everything in marriage that made it desirable by wearing away its illusions.

Nobody can keep up to a high emotional pitch year after year. Romance wears to tatters in time.

Desire cools down. Lovers can become bored with each other. Hope deferred can kill love. We can do without the thing we once longed for until we no longer want it. And so when the Jacobs and the Rachels, who have waited for each other seven years, do finally get to the altar they are generally a disillusioned and unsentimental couple who are marrying more because it is expected of them than because they want each other.

Without doubt Dr. Hall's findings are correct and the engagement which is neither too long nor too short is just the right length. That gives lovers time to test their own hearts and see if what they feel for each other is a passing fancy or a deathless passion. It gives them the opportunity of ascertaining whether they have the same leanings toward politics and pies, and whether they are going to be dumb in each other's presence, or be able to gossip happily together through a lifetime. Wedding cake should be eaten neither too hot, nor when it has been too long on the shelf.

GOOD TASTE TODAY
BY EMILY POST

QUESTIONS FROM BUSINESS OFFICES
Dear Mrs. Post: Do you think it wrong for a young woman in an office to accept an increase in salary if she knows that as soon as something turns up she will leave? I'm not dissatisfied with the place itself or with the treatment I get from my employers, but this is not the type of work for which I was especially trained and I took it because I could get nothing else.

Answer: I think your attitude does you credit, but from a practical standpoint I see reasons against refusing the salary (quite apart from renouncing the advantage of extra money). To tell your employers you are only waiting for a chance to leave is going to make them prefer to have you resign at once—in other words, it is going to destroy their satisfaction in your work, which up to now has evidently pleased them. There are also two possibilities of your wanting to keep the job. You may not find another, and you may get to like the one you hold. So perhaps it may sound unthoughtful, but I think you would better accept the raise—and try to be worth it for so long as you stay—or else resign. Otherwise you will simply upset everyone.

Dear Mrs. Post: (a) I recently started this position and immediately every one started to call me by my last name. Being new I did not want to appear unpleasant, and so made no objection. Every one who is called by her first name, I feel that I should either be called by my first name or the last name should be said with a title. Is this being unnecessarily fault finding? (b) Also, I find that in this office there is a custom of remembering all the girl's birthdays. My responsibilities at home are rather heavy, and as I have refrained from giving gifts to members of my family and to my own friends, I don't feel equal to this extravagance. But on the other hand I don't want to have even on my own on what is your suggestion?

Answer: (a) I think it is being rather fussy about nothing, but if all has not a clear title; that your husband or wife has a past that will darken your future; that the golden locks are peroxide and the imposing presence just a stuffed shirt; the sweetness and amiability only a line and that you have undertaken to spend forty or fifty years with an individual with whom you have not a single taste or thought or sentiment or habit in common.

Potato Producers To Study Market Plan in 9 States

Hearing Will be Held at Waupaca Courthouse Tuesday

A marketing agreement program designed to protect potato prices now seriously threatened by one of the largest crops on record will be presented to producers in Wisconsin and eight other major late commercial producing states next week, according to a communication received by R. C. Swanson, Outagamie county agricultural agent, from the state agricultural extension service.

The hearing at which Wisconsin growers and shippers will discuss the program will be held at Waupaca in the county courthouse at 9:30 Tuesday morning, Aug. 24.

The proposed program consists of a marketing agreement and order designed to promote orderly marketing of the huge 1937 crop with a view to preventing market glut which have such a depressing effect on grower prices. The principal method to be employed for avoiding these harmful accumulations will be the prohibition of interstate shipments of culls, and the limitation, when found necessary by the local industry, of shipments of other low grades. It is felt that merely withholding several million bushels of culls from commercial markets will have a beneficial effect on market conditions.

Withhold Culls
Culls, under the program, would be small potatoes less than 1 1/2 inches in diameter and larger potatoes so seriously damaged that more than 10 per cent by weight would be waste. No limitation would be placed on shipment of potatoes 1 1/2 inches or more in diameter, and grading United States fancy; United States extra No. 1; United States No. 1; and United States No. 1, size A, as described in "Official Standards for Potatoes" issued by the department of agriculture.

Inspection Service
One of the most important features of the program is the provision in the agreement and order that no handler shall ship or handle any potatoes in interstate or foreign commerce unless they have been inspected by an authorized representative of the Federal-State inspection service.

Potato prices have been going steadily downward since it became evident this spring that one of the largest crops on record would be harvested.

The 1937 United States crop is expected to be more than 72 million bushels greater than the one of last year, and more than 30 million bushels above the average for the period 1928-32. In addition to the fact that acreage is larger than in 1936 the highest average per acre yield on record, is in prospect according to the United States Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

The other states in which the proposed potato marketing agreement will be considered by farmers are: Maine, Minnesota, Michigan, North Dakota, Idaho, Colorado, Wyoming and Nebraska.

After the hearings in these various areas have been held referenda will be conducted among growers to determine whether they favor the proposed program.

According to the state extension office Lawrence Meyers, Fred Northrup and E. R. Hegge, representing the AAA, will conduct the hearing, while J. G. Millward of the college of agriculture will also be present.

County Farmers Will Have Exhibit at Fair

Twelve cows and bulls of Outagamie county farmers will be exhibited at the state fair in Milwaukee during the next week, according to R. C. Swanson, county agricultural agent. The cattle will be shipped to Milwaukee via the Milwaukee road at 5 o'clock this afternoon.

Owners of the animals are Hilmer Mueller, Seymour; Henry Schaefer, Greenville; Charles Carpenter, Dale; Walter Wickett, town of Center; H. C. Stichtman, New London and Laverne Zimmer, Dale.

GEENEN'S

ENTOMOLOGIST GETS SPECIMEN

At the ripe age of 4, David Korten, shown here in the midst of his favorite occupation, is something of an authority on butterflies. Not content with the cloudless sulphur, spangled fritillary and mourning cloaks already in his collection, he is now after a cecropia moth. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Korten, route 1, Menasha. (Post-Crescent Photo)

David Is Still Young but He Knows His Butterflies

The distinction of being one of the youngest butterfly fanciers in the country belongs to 4-year old David Korten, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Korten, route 1, Menasha. Although his accents are still of the baby talk variety, he reels off names like giant spangled fritillary and cecropia moth with the ease of an expert. Moth is a little difficult, of course, so he calls it moss, but you get what he means.

He's a chubby little flaxen-haired child and can be seen most hours of the day, armed with a glass jar or a home-made butterfly net fashioned out of an old onion bag, stealing up on butterflies in his mother's flower beds.

"Look, I'll show you a beaut," declared young David, who is as up on his slang as he is on butterflies. He produced a butterfly book with colored illustrations, given to him by an admiring friend, and between mouthfuls of the cookie he was munching he showed us not one, but several "beauts," brilliantly colored butterflies and moths which he had seen or hoped to see.

Knows Their Names
In spite of the fact that he is still too young to read, he knows the names of surprisingly many of them. When he finds the picture of one he has caught, he asks his parents or whomever he finds around to tell him the name below the illustration, and then he memorizes it.

His collection of butterflies, mounted on a board, was rather meager the day we looked at them, because some visitors of a few days before had handled them a little too enthusiastically, and the butterflies crumbled.

But David was able to show us, proudly, a swallowtail—called by him "slobbertail"—which he had caught, and a humming bird moth. Those pretty little yellow butterflies that flit around our gardens are just butterflies to most of us, but to David they are cloudless sulphur. He has one of those in his collection, and also several mourning cloaks—some of the most beautiful of our common butterflies. The wings are dark—a sort of glistering black-purple-brown—with yellow borders.

Demonstrates methods
His cookie eaten, the boy offered to demonstrate his method of capturing butterflies.

Board Committees to Discuss Pension Plan

The executive and pension committees of the county board will meet next Monday at the courthouse to discuss plans for revising the setup of the county pension department voted by the board this week. The committees and County Judge Heinemann will name a pension administrator. The administrator will select the necessary staff of inspectors and stenographers subject to the approval of the committees.

turing butterflies. With a glass jar in one hand and a perforated cover in the other, he stole across the grass on tiptoe to the flower bed where the fluttering of several brightly hued wings attracted him as surely as the petals of a flower attract a bee. Just as he was about to place the jar over the butterfly, it swooped away. The next two attempts were equally unsuccessful, but David remained unperturbed. He ignored the common little white butterflies which, we learned from him, are cabbage butterflies.

Finally, after much stealthy stalking around the house, David came upon a gorgeous speckled orange butterfly so engrossed in a zinnia that the jar was on top of the insect before it realized that the young hunter was near.

"What kind is it?" we asked, anxious to improve our learning.

David looked at it a long while and sighed.

"I don't know," he murmured. And then his face brightened. "But it'll be in the book."

Not Life's Work
He became interested in butterflies this summer when he watched some neighbors boys collect them. The boys were of high school age and the butterflies were only a momentary interest with them. But by the time they gave up catching them, David had become irrevocably fascinated with the brightly-winged insects. He has been hunting butterflies ever since.

David, one would think, has the makings of an entomologist in him, but when we asked him what he wanted to be when he grew up, he was quite definite in his answer, and it had nothing to do with butterflies.

"I want to be what Daddy is," he declared. Daddy is a machinist.

Progressives Confident Opposition Can't Unite

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison — The Progressive party high command is little concerned about what appears to be a boom for a fusion of the Democrats and Republicans of Wisconsin to overthrow the LaFollette administration next year, a spokesman for Governor LaFollette indicated here yesterday.

While prominent leaders of both old parties are hustling about the state organizing the movement for coalition and burdening the mails with letters proposing such action, leaders of the administration party are serene in their confidence that it can't be done.

The legal and practical difficulties to be surmounted before such a move can be effected are too many, Progressives believe, to allow any opportunity for a successful alliance before next year.

Propose Single Party
Republicans are now taking the lead in the fusion campaign, proposing that a single party representing the Democratic-Republican "liberal conservatives" be entered in the 1938 state election. But that, Progressives are quick to point out, will mean that one or the other of the old parties will lose its identity, which will never be tolerated by the national committee of the party.

Wisconsin election laws require that a party to remain on the ballot must poll five per cent of its presidential vote in the last campaign. Were the Democrats and Republicans to vote in a single party column, one of them, probably the Democratic, would fail to retain the necessary percentage, and thus lose its right to be on the ballot in succeeding elections.

So the Progressives feel, and they also point confidently to the practical political difficulties in a fusion. In many Wisconsin counties, for instance, either the Democrats or Republicans are supreme, as in the western and central parts of the state. There the local organizations control the county offices, and would naturally be reluctant to sacrifice those offices for the sake of defeating the LaFollette in the Madison government. "The county Democratic and Republican leaders," one high Progressive remarked, "aren't interested in who is governor. They are interested in getting the sheriff's office."

Receives Setbacks
In the last few weeks the fusion campaign has received two strong setbacks. First James A. Farley, Democratic national chairman, came to Wisconsin and made it plain that he would not tolerate such an attempt, and this week Charles E. Broughton, probably the most influential Democrat in the state, friend of President Roosevelt and Democratic committeeman for Wisconsin, denounced the fusion talk as part of a national move to undermine the Democratic party.

Broughton's attack came on the heels of a similar denunciation by Mrs. George Givan of Milwaukee, Democratic national committeewoman for Wisconsin, indicating that the national committee may have been the inspiration.

The fusion move, said Broughton, "is being tried in Illinois and several other states and no Democrat who has at heart the welfare of his party will be swayed by the argument that the old liners are becoming liberal. They are attempting to use the Democratic party as a vehicle for Republican success."

"Sometimes you hear them talking about a coalition in Wisconsin, but every time you pin them down it is a conservative talking with a conservative. Men who believe in liberalized government, who admire the fearless stand the president has taken in championing the cause of the common people are not behind the movement for a coalition." Broughton said that as a national committeeman he was confident the rank and file of his party would not sacrifice principle by following a coalition plan with those who were opposed to President Roosevelt in 1932 and 1936.

Lawrence Lists Omission Sins of Present Congress

Says Session Most Tragical Failure in 50 Years

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington — President Roosevelt's "smoke-screen" speech in North Carolina—an attempt to divert attention from the national job march—will not blot out the fact that the session of congress about to adjourn this week constitutes the most tragical failure in 50 years.

At a time when the Democratic party possessed an overwhelming majority of both houses, having won an election by carrying 46 out of 48 states, with full responsibility to improve the lot of the unemployed and the fortunes of the employed, the Roosevelt administration and the congress cannot justly claim a single major achievement in the whole seven months which could remotely be construed as assisting economic recovery.

In fact, the congress has wasted valuable time which should have been used to make a real start on the problems of recovery as well as on the prevention of a worse panic than 1929 due to excessive government borrowing. Here are the sins of omission of the present congress:

1. Nothing has been done to get jobs—permanent jobs—for the poor people now on WPA rolls. Their march on Washington is justified to the extent that it proves the administration wants to cut the WPA workers loose without providing conditions that will permit private business to employ them.
2. Nothing has been done to cut down the public debt. It is close to $37,000,000,000—a record high of all times.
3. Nothing has been done to cut down expenses. Though this is supposed to be a "recovery year," the government already, in the first six weeks of the new fiscal year which began on July 1 last, has spent more than $1,000,000,000, which compares with $770,000,000 for the same six weeks last year.
4. Nothing has been done to overhaul the tax structure and make the tax rates more productive and equitable.

Act Unworkable
5. Nothing has been done to make the securities and exchange act workable so that capital markets can really be operated to stimulate production.

6. Nothing has been done to count the unemployed or to classify them properly so a real start could be made on job placement.

7. Nothing has been done to set up an efficient, incorruptible, honest and non-political system of distributing relief payments.

8. Nothing has been done to regain for the cotton farmer of the south the world markets lost through New Deal shortsightedness.

9. Nothing has been done to amend the one-sided Wagner act so freedom to work might again be protected by the arm of government.

GRIN AND BEAR IT

ment against the lawlessness of irresponsible groups and the arbitrariness of government tribunals.

10. Nothing has been done to keep down the cost of articles which the farmer buys.

11. Nothing has been done to bring down the cost of living for the city family.

No Surplus Tax Relief

12. Nothing has been done to relieve small businesses of the strait-jacket imposed on them by the so-called undistributed surplus tax, which has proved a "dud" so far as producing revenue is concerned and has only produced headaches and near-bankruptcies for debt-ridden companies struggling to emerge from the depression.

13. Nothing has been done to help the cause of the Negro, whose votes were so blatantly gathered in by the Democrats last fall, and while congress could at least have adopted a resolution condemning lynching and could have strengthened the statutes calling for federal intervention when local processes of law and order break down, as they did in Michigan in the sit-down strikes, the congress chose instead to ignore the fact that the federal constitution guarantees the citizen the right to life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness.

14. Nothing has been done to bring about the much needed coordination of federal, state and local tax collecting agencies so as to eliminate duplication, waste and overlapping.

15. Nothing has been done to use the vast hoard of gold buried in Kentucky as a basis for a revived world system of credits so as to start the flow of international trade in earnest and break down the main prop of dictatorship at home and abroad—economic nationalism.

Appropriation Powers

16. Nothing has been done to get the legislative powers of appropriation out of the hands of the executive and back into the hands of the congress, where they belong.

17. Nothing has been done to render unnecessary the artificial "pump priming" use of public funds so that economic recovery could be put on a sound and permanent basis.

18. Nothing, indeed, has been done to improve the condition of the one-third of our population who, the president keeps saying are, "ill-clad, ill-nourished and ill-housed," that is, nothing has been done except to talk about it.

This is the record. What did congress do? It passed a few minor bills, providing for some new experiments in money-spending, and the rest of the time the whole session was monopolized by Mr. Roosevelt's ill-timed, ill-conceived, and ill-constructed proposals to do away with the process of amending the constitution in the regular way and to change the American system by packing the supreme court with political puppets who would take orders from the White House on how the constitution should be interpreted.

Again and again, the president was warned that the plan would be defeated, but he tied up the whole legislative machinery by insisting on a prolonged fight to the finish to demonstrate the truth of a fact which was conveyed to him months before by his intimate friends among the leaders of both houses.

Congress had a chance to improve on social security legislation and to iron out the unworkable features of other hastily passed measures of previous sessions. Congress had a chance to encourage the American economic system. But the president did not will it so. And now the president assumes the level of intelligence of the American electorate is such that the mistakes of the last few months and the unhappy corporation now of the mistakes of the last four years will be overlooked and forgotten simply by making a series of speeches denouncing the United States Chamber of Commerce and the national association of manufacturers, from whose individual members the president's henchmen on the Democratic National committee do not hesitate to extort money for campaign contributions in violation of the laws of the United States.

As long as there is a free press, these facts will be exposed to the view of the citizens, and it remains to be seen how long "smoke-screen" speeches and shifting of blame can fool the independent

"Camay really made my skin look

Fresh as a Rose"

SAYS THIS LOVELY MAINE BRIDE

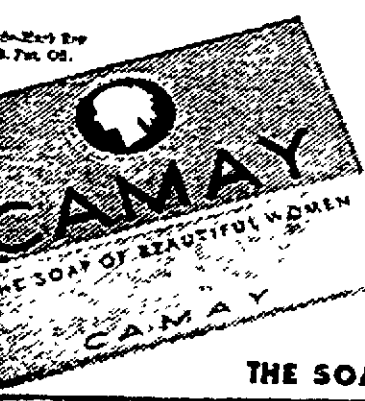

BANGOR, ME.
I wouldn't neglect my Camay care even for a day. No wonder when it's really Camay that made my skin look fresh as a rose!
(Signed) LOUISE M. PAINE
(Mrs. Edward B. Paine)
May 10, 1937

YOU'D LIKE a skin as lovely as Mrs. Paine's. Any girl would! Then why not try her beauty care — gentle Camay?

You'll quickly find no soap has the same fragrant, velvety lather Camay has. Its beauty bubbles go down deep to get skin clean — to leave it feeling fresh.

No other leading toilet soap is gentler than Camay. In repeated tests against other beauty soaps, on every type of skin, Camay won! Camay is definitely, probably milder.

And because no soap that you can buy is better than Camay, you'll want to buy half a dozen cakes of this inexpensive beauty care today. Use it faithfully for the kind of skin that men adore!

40 Attend Farewell.

Welcome for Wardens

Kaukauna—About 40 men were present at the farewell party held at the Kaukauna Gun club last night for George Whalen, Outagamie county game warden who has been transferred to Waupaca county. The affair, sponsored by the Kaukauna Conservation club, was also a welcome to B. G. Kramer, new county warden.

Pantry Team May Cinch Title in Thilmany Game

Kaukauna—Whether or not Thilmany mill, pace setters and powerhouse of the twilight softball league, will get a chance at the championship bunting, will be decided tonight, when they face the Pantry Lunch, the fighting, undefeated team of the league, in the last scheduled game of the summer. Play will start at 5:30.

Pantry Lunch has the edge tonight, with a league standing of four won and none lost, against Thilmany's record of three won and one lost. Besides, the Pantry boys won the first half of the league, and should they win tonight, they will be undisputed champions without having to go through the anxiety of a play-off series.

Built around the pitching arm of George Block, the Thilmany team has gone through its opponents with the greatest of ease, until they met with an unexpected 6-3 setback Tuesday at the hands of the third place Kappell outfit. Thilmany's batting has not been the team's greatest asset, and while the boys got eight hits Tuesday, just as many as the winners, they did not connect in the clutches.

The Pantry boys can attribute their unbeaten season to their youthful fighting spirit. A pretty good group of sticklers, they have been hitting when it counts, and they've salvaged several games this season by playing it hard when they were trailing.

One blot on the leaders' record is the fact that they defeated the Thilmany team in the first half on a day when Thilmanys were without the services of Block. They have to win tonight to prove their championship caliber, and when Block is on with his fast one, winning against him is a hard job for any team.

New Roof Is Built on Fire-Damaged Building

Kaukauna—Rebuilding of the roof on the Central block, business building badly damaged by fire in March, began yesterday as workmen started reconditioning the building for occupancy. Fred Weiler is doing the construction work under the supervision of John Coppes.

Fireproof material will be used in the construction of the new roof. When the roof is completed two office suites will be finished, but the rest of the second story will be just roughed in, so that it may be prepared to suit the renter when it is leased. One large section of the second floor was formerly a lodge meeting hall.

Kaukauna—Kaukauna police were looking for thieves yesterday, and right in their own back yard. Worst of all, the thievery was done in the police station itself.

Tuesday one of those sturdy wooden chairs that line the wall of the station's outside office disappeared. Wednesday morning the officers of the law thought someone had merely borrowed the chair and had not bothered to return it just yet. By the afternoon, however, they became impatient, and other city employees in the building spent much of the afternoon denying that they had anything to do with the mystery of the police station chair. Is the chair back? Well, maybe by this time.

Whether these changes are beneficial or progressive they usually end in arguments, but it is agreed that, "Nothing is constant but change."

The fur industry is no exception to this rule.

Since the beginning of man, when furs were the first and only means of clothing; furs changed from awkward skins draped over the shoulders to garments that today startle women (and men too) with their striking natural beauty, created in graceful designs.

Seriously Thinking

BY KERM

"Nothing is constant but change"

In a moving, complex existence people of all walks of life are well aware of this fact. Changes brought about by business conditions, scientific achievements or political shifts, result in a general agreement that — time, in passing, never reveals an exact duplication of the past.

Whether these changes are beneficial or progressive they usually end in arguments, but it is agreed that, "Nothing is constant but change."

The fur industry is no exception to this rule.

Since the beginning of man, when furs were the first and only means of clothing; furs changed from awkward skins draped over the shoulders to garments that today startle women (and men too) with their striking natural beauty, created in graceful designs.

These changes were the result of women's demand for improved comfort and individual style. They found alert furriers to supply that demand... and early fur shoppers found Krick's more than alert to demands for individual creations... they learned how we prepared to show these furs at August discount prices... prices that mean savings in the face of a rising fur market.

Stop in at 303 W. College Avenue, learn how Krick's will meet your fur needs.

You'll find why one customer humorously remarked that the little animals must have happily given the fur from their backs to find Krick's 'New Design for Living'.

Coal Forms Bulk of Boat Shipments Here

Almost all of the shipments by boat through the Appleton locks this year have been coal, according to lock attendants. Further shipments of coal are expected to provide the bulk of the summer's commerce, with some shipments of stone and gravel from Oshkosh if building projects below Appleton are started. The Wisconsin-Michigan Power company has started to store coal after several months in which few loads were received.

pending several commission orders affecting the company, would be the next appeal authority if an adverse ruling results from a rehearing.

Referring to a depreciation order issued in 1936 and recently returned to the commission by Circuit Judge A. C. Hoppmann the commission stated "the excess depreciation alone which the company claims would more than offset the total emergency relief tax."

Revenue from company operations during the first four months of 1937, compared with the same period of 1936, showed material improvement even after the emergency tax, the commission found. "From exchange service, to which the company proposes to pass on the tax to the patrons by means of a surcharge, the net operating income was greater for the 1937 period by $42,644 than for the 1936 period, but toll operations, where the company is content to absorb the payment of the tax from its present earnings, had a net operating income for the 1937 period of $17,956 less than for the 1936 period," the commission said.

"The reasons advanced for not asking the same treatment for toll-rate payers as for exchange-rate payers are persuasive of neither fair and equal treatment as between these two classes nor the existence of a compelling emergency. If the applicant were really faced with an emergency demanding relief, the need for additional revenue would be aggravated for the one class of subscribers by the exception of the other."

"The granting of substantial wage increases as late as June 7, 1937, does not indicate an alarm on the part of the management for the financial stability of the company," the order stated.

China's Armies Move Forward to Eject Japanese

the Japanese fighting a desperate defensive to keep from being pushed into the river.

Bombing planes of both armies carried the battle far afield from the strategic Whangpoo banks. The Japanese airforce bombed the north station of the Shanghai-Nanking railroad, which is immediately adjacent to the defense lines thrown about the international settlement by the United States marines.

In anticipation of further air-bombings of the international settlement, police ordered Shanghai's famous waterfront bund cleared and all side streets blocked off. Tension was at the highest pitch since the undeclared Sino-Japanese war literally encircled this great commercial city of 3,500,000 persons eight days ago.

In the early morning the American refugees began swarming down the bund to the custom's jetty, crowding aboard the Dollar line tenders and the two destroyers for the ten-mile voyage to the Yangtze estuary and the liner President Hoover anchored off Woosung. While hundreds surged aboard the tenders tied up at the jetty, naval motor launches carried other hundreds out to the destroyers Edsel and Parrott, of the fourteenth division of the Asiatic fleet, lying in midstream under the protecting guns of the American flagship, the cruiser Augusta.

As the Dollar line tender, bearing 400 refugees, proceeded slowly down stream, a squadron of Chinese bombers—swift, American-made machines—appeared over the tender. Japanese warships nearby unleashed a savage barrage of anti-aircraft fire that made the river hideous with flying shrapnel.

A small guard of tin-hatted American marines smiled nonchalantly as the showers of hot lead whizzed overhead. The American women and children on the tender displayed remarkable calmness and courage under fire.

At the first burst of shelling the commanding officer ordered full speed ahead. A few minutes behind the Hoover's tender came the American destroyers, loaded to the gun rails with refugees.

Some of the refugees crouched behind the gun turrets for protection from the shrapnel and machine gun bullets spurring up and down the river and from both sides.

As Uncle Sam's refugee fleet disappeared into the maze it passed an unending line of Japanese cruisers and destroyers stripped for action.

After an hour's voyage of terror the peaceful sight of the liner President Hoover loomed up off the celebrated Woosung forts—China's Bunker Hill—ready to take them to safety.

A great sigh of relief went up as the Hoover weighed anchor for Manila and headed down the Yangtze, leaving war behind.

Neenah Lions Score Four Runs in Last Inning to Trim Menasha Club

Neenah—The shades of night and the Menasha Lions fell last night on the Neenah High school diamond, the first because the sun went down and the second because the Neenah Lions scored four runs in the last of the seventh inning to win the long-heralded softball game 13-12.

Punctuated with side-line remarks and disputes over alleged importation of "foreigners" by each squad, the game was tied in the third, sixth and seventh innings. The game started on the mound for the Menasha Lions, but he had to re-ture at the end of the third because he couldn't produce a membership card.

He was relieved by Big Train Berro who hurled the remaining four innings, handicapped by a sore finger done up in splints large enough for the ordinary man's broken leg. Zeininger did the catching.

Behind 12-9 as they went into their half of the last inning, the Neenah Lions took advantage of the darkness and faulty Menasha fielding to push in four runs.

How It Was Done

They did it like this: Terrible Tyrell, who pitched for Neenah, and Pyott, who caught his whizzing missiles, got safe hits. Jensen and Kuehl were put out, and the Menasha Lions licked their chops, waiting for the final KILL.

What they presumed to be their quarry, Harry D. Gates, stepped up and fondled the bat, then drove one in the hazy dusk and brought Tyrell and Pyott home and Neenah walked up and brought Gates in to tie the score. And then Fisher whacked one out and Pratt came home to give his team the game by one run.

Melvin Crowley, Manager of the Menasha team, said today that the Menasha Lions, untamed by last night's defeat, will play Brillion next week.

Draw Ordinance For Maintenance Of Sewage Plant

Oshkosh Proposal Provides for Retirement Of Bonds by 1960

Post-Crescent Oshkosh Bureau Oshkosh—A general idea of just what the average citizen and taxpayer in Oshkosh will have to pay on or about Oct. 1, for use of the newly installed $1,000,000 sewer system is contained in a proposed ordinance and in the budget of the sewerage commission.

According to the report of the sewerage commission, signed by R. C. Dempsey, chairman, efforts will be made to make users of the system pay for the cost of operation and retire outstanding bonds by 1960.

The first charge will be $1.60 per year, payable quarterly, for every connection to the sewer system. Each connection will have to pay this $1.60 charge. Next will be an amount which will equal 50 per cent of the water rental now paid by the taxpayer.

And, before the taxpayer can use the system, a deposit must be posted of about $3 for one family; $6 for a two-family residence, with additional charges for more families up to $15. This deposit will be held, and interest of 3 per cent paid while it is held.

Deposits to be required from industrial users and stores will be $25, the report states.

Charge Users

The big problem for the sewerage commission seems to be to effect a system of charges for users of the sewers who are not connected up to city water mains. As they have no meters, they will be charged under one of the following plans:

On the basis of normal use of the sewer system; on the basis of the number of persons in the household estimated on number of gallons of water which would be used; or by the number of fixtures installed.

The proposed ordinance, which will be considered by the Oshkosh council at the next regular meeting provides that the city turn over $20,000 annually to the sewerage commission. This is because the estimated revenue is $67,000 and the estimated expenditure is $87,000. It is argued that at present Oshkosh spends $12,000 to $14,000 per year taking care of the sanitary and storm sewers. This amount, plus $6,000 per year will be charged the city for water carried through the sewer mains.

Revenue Estimate

Estimate of the revenue is as follows: 50 per cent of the water charge, $50,000; connections at $1.60 each, $14,000; and revenue from un-metered users, $3,000.

Proposed expenditures are as follows: supervision and labor, $12,000; power costs, $5,500; operating supplies, $3,000; repairs and maintenance, $3,000; chemicals, $6,000, and office supplies, $2,000.

Cost of maintaining present sewers is estimated at $14,000; bond retirement and payment of interest is $27,000; and miscellaneous and unforeseen expense is set at $2,000. This brings the total to $74,500.

To this amount is added $12,500 per year for depreciation of the system, which totals $87,000.

Salaries paid include $2,500 per year to Robert L. Frazier, recently appointed manager. Frazier was formerly with the William Cramer and Sons, engineers, who installed the system.

Albert Schwartz, office manager, will receive a salary of $1,620, and provision has been made for a stenographer at $840 per year.

Operators at the plant will be paid as follows: three at $115 per month, total $4,140; and one at $125 per month, or $1,500 per year. An

Menasha Club Holding Third Place in League Standings

Menasha—Oshkosh, a team that was flying high and then fell, will be the next opponent of the Menasha Eagles in a Northern Valley league game next Sunday afternoon.

Beaten by Grand Chute, 20-13, last Sunday, the Oshkosh club slipped back to second place, giving way to the Neenah Merchants who beat Green Bay 7-4.

The Eagles are resting in third place, with a record of 9 games won and 8 lost for a percentage of .529. Brown or Ripple will probably do the pitching for the Eagles Sunday, with Smarzinski catching.

Crew of 135 Men Working on New Menasha School

Bricklayers are Erecting
Walls of Gymnasium Section

Menasha—A crew of 135 men, one of the largest that has been employed since the project opened, has been working this week on the new Menasha high school.

The weather, which has been a boon to building all summer, made no interruptions this week and construction work is moving rapidly ahead. Recent progress most noticeable to the passerby is on the gymnasium where walls are being erected by bricklayers.

The concrete ground floor slabs in the academic building are finished, the roof is completed, plasterers are working on the second floor, and lathers on the third. Plumbing fixtures for toilets on the first, second, and third floors are being installed and the ceramic glazed brick that will surround them is being put in place. The boilers were installed this week in the room below the academic unit. Plastering is finished on the second floor of the vocational building where strips are now being laid for the maple floor which will be built next week. In the auditorium, the forms for the balcony are under construction. The concrete base for the stage is completed.

Tile setters will report for work next week at the high school to lay tile in the corridors, stairways, and toilets. They will start with the vocational wing, furthest advanced of the four units.

In contrast to the encouraging reports of the building progress at the high school is the disappointing word from the headquarters of the "Public Works Administration" in Washington, D. C., yesterday that the request for an additional $51,444 by the school board has been refused. There is a possibility that PWA will reconsider the matter, but if not, it will mean that certain equipment and facilities planned for the high school will not be available.

Batteries will probably be Knoll and Kraus for the Labels and Rommek and Wiatrowski for the Falcons. Last Sunday's game was witnessed by a good-sized crowd.

Favor Marathon Team

To Remain Undeclared

Menasha—If the Marathon Paper company team follows the forecasts and defeats Edgewater in one of the two final Industrial League games to be played tomorrow night, it will complete an undefeated season.

In the other game, the Gilbert Paper company and Mill Supply will meet at the same time on the Seventh street diamond.

The theme of the Parent Teachers association this year will be "The Family's Place in the Community." The Nov. 16 meeting is to be a traveling one but the speaker has not been secured as yet.

Mrs. Hopfensperger met with her committee which includes Mrs. G. K. Hill, Mrs. Silas Spengler, and Mrs. Charles Bailor, Wednesday afternoon at her home and tentative program outlines were drawn. Mrs. Bailor was appointed secretary of the committee. Mrs. I. M. Catlin, president of the P. T. A. was also at the meeting Wednesday.

President Gets Word
Washington—(AP)—President Roosevelt said today whatever action was deemed advisable in connection with the shelling of the Cruiser Augusta off Shanghai would be determined by officials on the ground there.

The president told a press conference he had received only fragmentary unofficial dispatches on the shelling.

Asked what this would mean as far as any counter action was concerned, the president said such things were almost bound to happen in a situation such as that at Shanghai.

Asked what he was going to do about it, he said the people on the spot could tell more about that than officials in Washington.

In response to other questions, he said official Washington was talking about the advisability of invoking the neutrality act every day.

He informed that the Japanese charge had left Tientsin the president expressed doubt as to whether that meant diplomatic relations had formally been broken off.

Also informed about a statement by the Council for Prevention of War favoring immediate proclamation of neutrality, the president said, without derogation to that organization, that government officials had more information than it had.

Oshkosh—Unusual success in the 4-H club "roundup" in the field of home economics, held at Winnebago Tuesday, was reported today by Miss Helen Briggs, county home demonstration agent.

Miss Briggs stated that 15 4-H club girls entered the canning judging contest, 24 entered the baking judging contest, and 28 girls entered the clothing contest.

Winning girls in the demonstration contest, Miss Briggs said, were Donna Grundy and Josephine Devens, of the Allenville Girls 4-H club. Second place went to Gwendolyn Clark and Janice Furman, of the Lucky 13 club. Third place winners were Dorothy and Eleanor Pfaffenroth, Clover-Cluster Girls 4-H club.

Other entries in the demonstrations were: Germaine Boeschear and Ruby Marx, Clairville girls; Helen and Ruth Skatte, Stand-Up-And-Cheer club, and Mary Steele, Waukau.

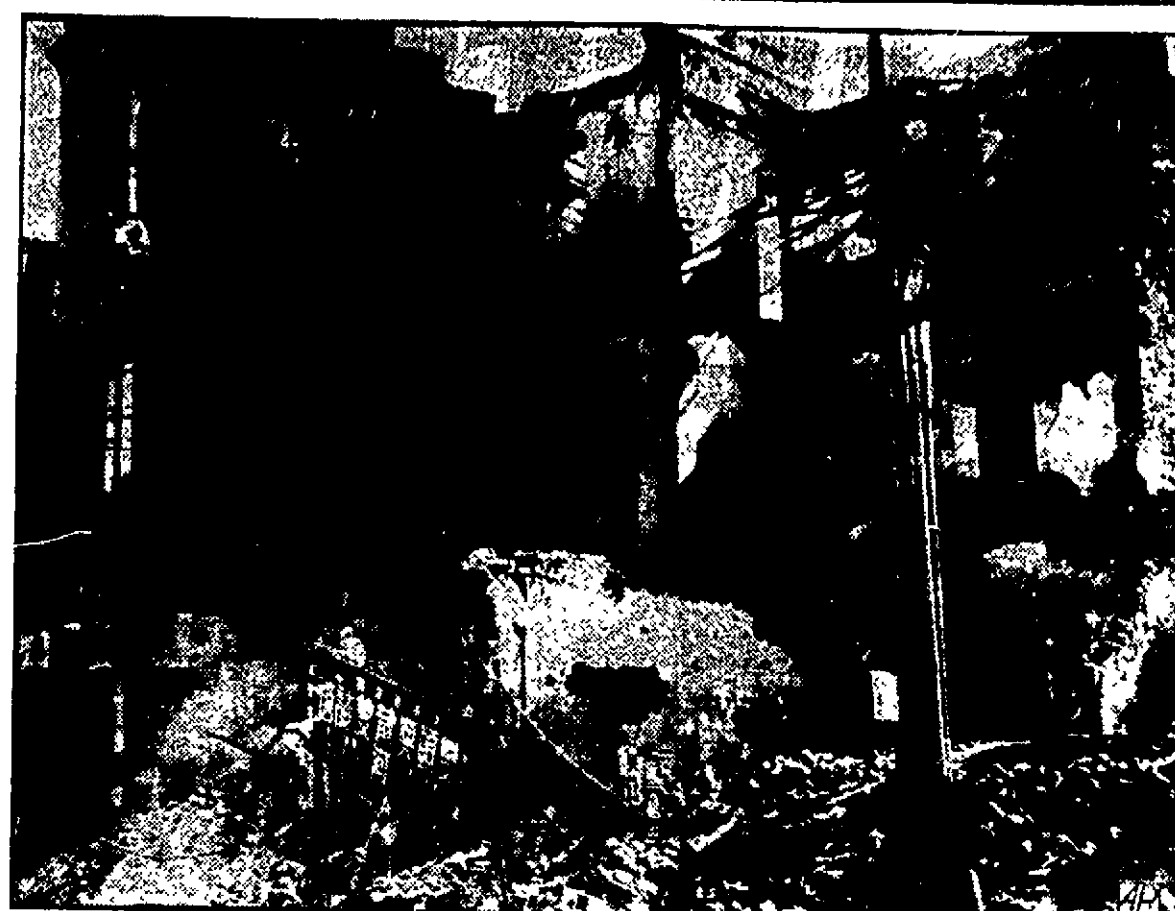

Miss Briggs said that four home economics judges were selected to enter a contest at the state fair. The two clothing judges are Lorraine Weidemann, Ever-Ready club, and Lucille Annunson, Lucky 13 club. Lorraine Busse, Zion 3-C club was chosen to enter the baking contest judging at the state fair and Dorothy Meltz, Allenville Girls club, will enter the canning judging contest.

Local 4-H club fairs this week were held at the Adolph Sauby farm residence and at the Roy Kittleson home. A Mears school local fair will be held there Friday afternoon.

R. C. Heffernan, county agent, also reported on the roundup. He said that about 150 4-H club members were present to take part in the various contests, both team and individual, to select members to represent Winnebago county at the state fair next week.

Five demonstrations were given, the winning team being the one representing the Allenville Boys 4-H Club. The team was made up of Gerhardt Boss and Burdette Eagan. Their demonstration was "Galvanized Sheet Metal." These boys will represent the county at the state demonstration contest at the state fair next week.

Other demonstrations were presented by Earl Busse and Gordon Whitmarsh of the Zion 3-C 4-H Club, "Soils and Fertilizers"; Philip and Wilma Lautenbach of the Wolf River Wonder Workers presented a poultry culling demonstration; two teams presented "Selection of Dairy Cattle" demonstrations. They were Francis Kulogo and Walter Belfast of the Clayton Center 4-H Club and Donovan Menasha—More than 1,500 persons are expected to attend the Banta Publishing company picnic which will be held tomorrow afternoon and evening in Smith park.

Activities will open at 1 o'clock in the afternoon, with the usual races, contests, and Bingo game, and lead up to the feature event of the picnic, a baseball game between the Banta Regulars and the Banta Pickups at 4 o'clock.

W. A. Macfarlane is general chairman for the picnic. He is assisted by Veronica Voissem, Frances Reinhardt, L. Plankuch, A. Keller, I. Schweiner, W. Lockbaum, B. Jung, S. Slomski, R. Suess, and R. Tuchscherer who head the various committees.

A total of 300 employees and 1,100 guests were present at last year's picnic. This year's attendance is expected to be larger.

Congress Debate Over Wagner Bill Delaying Session

they might, although the regular program called for adjournment tomorrow night.

Not for many years has there been so little major legislation in the mill at a session's close. It happened this time only because most of the controversial problems were postponed until the next session.

It was this procrastination which provided the only worry for tired legislators as they looked forward with relief to adjournment. They wondered whether it would cause President Roosevelt to call them back into a special session two months hence.

The house considered today a committee compromise on the controversial sugar quota law, originally opposed by President Roosevelt. It was approved in the senate yesterday.

The agreement provides that restrictions against refining sugar in Hawaii and Puerto Rico shall be lifted March 1, 1940, but leaders still were in doubt whether the president would sign the bill.

Ditched in the rush to adjourn were not only the wage-hour and farm bills, but a crop insurance measure and a host of less important bills.

House leaders believed they might salvage from the wreckage a bill already passed by the senate for an unemployment census, and some senators were seeking a vote on a natural gas regulation measure which the house has approved.

Before quitting, house leaders also planned to approve a senate resolution making farm legislation the first order of business at the next session.

Because so many of the president's measures have been postponed, this year's accomplishments added up to little of significance aside from the routine appropriation bills and extensions of old laws.

Chief exceptions to the routine measures were farm tenancy, housing, neutrality, and the Guffey coal laws.

The major controversy of the session—over judicial legislation—wound up with two bills that might have been passed with little dispute at any time, a voluntary retirement law for supreme court justices and a lower court procedure measure.

The senate idled through the first few months of the session while the court issue was fought in committee and in the country as a whole. It met only two or three times a week until late in the spring.

After a brief period of normal work, it idled down again toward an easy adjournment—without a

Report Factory Will be Erected North of Oshkosh

Menasha—Reports that a group of men including L. Seyler, Menasha inventor, are planning to build a factory north of Oshkosh have been confirmed by Jess P. Gokey, route 5, Oshkosh, owner of the property which has been chosen as the site.

Gokey has quoted the men as saying that construction on the factory will start this fall and that options on the 108 acres which have been held by the men for about a year expire this month and call for the sale of the land at a price of about $30,000.

The land extends a half-mile on both sides of Bowen street in north Oshkosh from the Chicago and Northwestern Railway tracks to Oakwood Beach.

It was not disclosed what type of product would be manufactured.

Four St. Mary School Scholarships Awarded

Menasha—Four St. Mary High school scholarships, two of them gifts of the Catholic Daughters of America and two from the Nicolet Council of Knights of Columbus, have been awarded to pupils in Catholic parishes in the Twin Cities.

They are as follows: St. John parochial school, Menasha, Raymond Pozolinsky, son of Mr. and Mrs. Anton Pozolinsky, 705 Racine street; St. Patrick school, Menasha, Wilbur Foth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Foth, 325 Second street, Neenah; St. Mary grade school, Ruby Jean Loper, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Loper, 517 Seventh street, and Mary Helen Landgraf, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Landgraf, 400 First street.

Far East Conflict Quadruples War Risks

London—(AP)—Marine underwriters quadrupled their war risk rates today on tankers sailing in Mediterranean waters.

Recent sinkings of such vessels off the Spanish coast were given as the reason for the increase from a quarter of one per cent of value to one per cent.

The underwriters also announced they would no longer accept war risks on goods before loading or after discharge at Chinese ports at the previous high rate of 10 per cent.

single night session for the first time in many years.

The house, usually cleaned up long ahead of the senate, dragged this time. It was there that the pre-adjournment pressure was evidenced by night sessions and a rapid pace. The best word old-timers could find to describe the session was "crazy."

Little Chute Rallies to Beat New London, 6-3

Losers Hit Three

Blows for Losers

NEW LONDON—For five innings last night it looked like the New York Yankees had come to town when the New London Knapstein Brews led Little Chute 3 to 2 with three home runs. Then in the sixth inning the invaders pounded Pete Westphal for five hits and three runs to earn a 6 to 3 victory. The tilt was a non-league exhibition. Little Chute is from the Northern State league while the Brews play in the Wolf Valley league.

Until the final innings the three homers constituted the only hits for the Brews. Clifford Schimke emerged from a long hitting slump and added a single in a ninth-inning attempt to regain the lead. Damming accounted for a single in the seventh.

Westphal, Hank McClone and Schimke all wacked the horseshoe over the right field wall in the second, fourth and fifth innings. Schimke getting the longest drive when his wallop sailed past the center light pole along the fence.

The Chuters grouped eight hits in three innings to best New London. In the eventual sixth inning Strick and Bongers singled but eventually were caught on bases in a melee of wild throwing by the Brew infield. VanDyke doubled. Schuler reached base on a fielder's choice and both scored on Wildenberg's double. The latter crossed the plate on a safety by Ellis. Bongers also dove in a run with a double in the fourth inning.

Schuler pitched the home runs to the New London sluggers but after the Chuter scoring in the sixth inning was relieved by Weisberger, regular hurler, who put the game away. He allowed two singles and fanned eight men in 3 1/2 innings.

Westphal walked seven men and Schuler three while Big Ed fanned six and Schuler five. The majority of the strikes against the Brews were called.

A play in a million occurred in the second inning to aid the Brews at a crucial moment. With two men on bases by virtue of walks and Westphal becoming wilder, an attempt by Verstegen to race home at the pitch was foiled when the ball went terribly wild, smashed against the grandstand and bounced back into the hands of catcher Olin Krohn who surprised Verstegen for the putout.

Sunday afternoon the New London squad will travel to Weyauwega for a Wolf Valley league game.

Red Birds Climb
Toward PennantColumbus Hopes to Use St.
Paul as Stepping
Stone

Chicago—(P)—The Columbus Red Birds, only a single game behind the circuit leading Minneapolis Millers, hoped to use the lowly St. Paul Saints as a stepping stone today in their climb toward the American association pennant.

The Red Birds, opening a series against the Saints at Columbus, had a slight advantage over Minneapolis, which faced the strong Toledo Mud Hens, occupants of third place, in the Hen park.

Enos Slaughter, leading association batsman, got his twenty-third homer of the season at the right moment for Columbus last night, the circuit smash giving the Red Birds a 5 to 4 win over the Millers.

Toledo defeated St. Paul 5 to 0 behind the 4-hit slinging of Emmett Nelson, who bested Bob Coombs in a hurling duel until the sixth, when a 5-hit offense netted four runs.

Kansas City swept a twilight double bill from Indianapolis, taking the first game 9 to 5 and the second 8 to 2.

Milwaukee defeated Louisville 9 to 6 in 10 innings in the first game of a night doubleheader, the Brewers getting 17 hits off three Colonels hurlers. In the second game, the Brewers downed the Colonels, 4 to 1, in seven innings. Milwaukee scored three runs in the seventh.

New York—Kid Chocolate, 127, Cuba, outpointed Johnny Defoe, 126 1/2, New York (10).

Permit Packers to Use Sauer in Grid
Classic on Sept. 1Lambeau, All-Star Coaches
Agree on Rules
For Tilt

CHICAGO—(P)—The goal posts again will be at "close range" when the college All-Stars battle the Green Bay Packers, world professional grid champions, at Soldier Field the night of Sept. 1.

At a meeting of the All-Star coaching staff, headed by Gus Dorais of the University of Detroit, and Coach Curley Lambeau of the Packers, it was decided to place the uprights on the goal line instead of on the end lines, their position under college rules.

Although the posts originally were placed on the goal line to increase scoring, only one field goal has been scored in the previous three charity contests. In 1935 Jack Manders of the Bears kicked for three of the five points the Chicago pro scored to defeat the collegians. Last year, Earl (Dutch) Clark of Detroit, famous for his "educated toe," could not take advantage of the goal line posts.

Sauer Will Play
The All-Star coaches agreed to let the Packers use George Sauer, the former Nebraska fullback. The question of Sauer's eligibility which had been protested because he is under contract to coach at the University of New Hampshire this fall, was settled at the meeting.

The protest of the All-Star coaches evaporated in good natured raillery, and at the same time Coach E. L. Lambeau of Green Bay abandoned his contention that all college men under contract to professional teams should be barred.

Another important rule agreed upon involves the dead-ball regulation. Under the college code, when a ball carrier touches any part of his body except hands or feet to the ground, the ball is declared dead at the spot. In the All-Star contest this will apply except when a carrier falls in the open and no defensive man is nearer than 10 yards. The responsibility of estimating the distance will fall on the referee.

Coach Dorais put his players through a 2-hour drill under the lights last night. The Packers, working out at Green Bay, were scheduled to take their first scrimmage session today.

Stars Play Tonight

The first game of the series between the American league and the American City league all-stars will be staged starting at 5:30 this evening at the Roosevelt school diamond. Both squads have been practicing for several days and some of the fastest ball of the season is being predicted. Butte des Morts Golf club held its annual jamboree and guest day golf program yesterday afternoon with 225 persons registered and here are a couple pictures of activities. The top picture shows the "pay-up" table which is almost as important as the "pay-off" table. The gentlemen are, reading left to right around the table, Bert Dutcher, Bud Plank, Bill Jacobson, Syd Dutcher, John Dutcher and John Dowdle, Chicago, a guest of the Dutchers. The latter three had charge of registrations and fees and you'll notice that Bert Dutcher appears to be giving the coat off his back to get a ticket from the two younger male members in his family.

The lower picture shows some of the handicaps Joe Shields had to play under on that back "ten." Joe dropped his ball so near the barrel, one of the obstructions around the 17th green, that he had to climb into the barrel to shoot while Eddie Kotal and Art Lemke offered advice. Joe almost had to go home in the barrel, too. Lemke won one of the day's best prizes with a 34 on the first nine holes. (Post-Crescent Photo)

225 Members and Guests
Take Part in Jamboree
Party at Butte des Morts

BY GORDON MCINTYRE
IT'S all over but the shouting, and perhaps a few headaches—the annual Butte des Morts jamboree and guest day program which was staged at the club yesterday with 225 registered players and guests. The turnout was one of the largest in club history and by the comments and the howls of delight on the course and the fact most of the boys remained into the evening for distribution of prizes, everyone must have had a pretty fair time.

The golf features of the day were nine holes of straight play and "nine" holes of some of the darndest shots a guy ever laid awake at night thinking about. Players had to make the last nine holes once but could play the first nine as many times as they could get around. That wasn't much more than once during the peak of play in the afternoon, but the lads who started during the morning got in an extra nine.

The early arrivals and those who arrived at noon had lunch at the club while the seventh tee again was an oasis for the thirsty. Dinner was served in the evening and the crowd remained for the drawing of prizes while others indulged in a few indoor games until the small hours.

Many Guests
The day's program attracted a large number of guests ranging from someone's best customer to his best salesman or a prospect for an insurance policy or printing job. But there were others, too. For instance Joseph Martin of Green Bay was the guest of Al Krugmeier. Marie Carroll of Oshkosh came over to play in a journey for a change instead of directing one, and Paddy Driscoll, new football coach at Marquette, was the guest of several alumni and played in a foursome which showed, among others, Dr. Don Curtin of Little Chute.

In the evening Paddy had a chance to talk shop with Eddie Kotal who led a delegation of Stevens Pointers and when last seen both Eddie and Paddy were telling each other of their terrible prospects but were careful not to mention the names of any promising boys who might go to school this fall.

Mathews, Lemke Low
Jake Mathews, who used to be the assistant at Butte des Morts, forgot his job at Riverview long enough to come over and play a round and win first honors for low score on the last nine where the equal Mathews turned in a 42 for the round. August Brandt won second honors and J. R. Joyce third.

Art Lemke burned up the first nine holes for a 34 and won low honors. His putter was working perfectly although he had a couple other sensational shots, one an approach to a foot from the pin on his second shot on No. 9. Not only that, but he shot "blind" to the green. Ralph McGowan was second with a 35.

Andy Parnell hit the longest wallop on No. 11 with that geared driver. John Mullen was second longest. On No. 15, where a putter was required for the first two shots, Dewey Bendt took the honors.

Among the other accomplishments which brought prizes to players were: Low gross on second nine: Jack Taylor, fourth and Schwartz, fifth; low gross on first nine: Jim McKenny, third, O. K.

SUNDAY'S GAMES
Grand Chute at Neenah.
Menasha at Oshkosh.
Green Bay at Appleton.

WITH the right to represent the Northern Valley league in a Milwaukee tournament next week the stake, the Neenah Merchants play host to the last place Grand Chute nine Sunday. Neenah needs the win over the lowly Chuters and is not taking Sunday's encounter too easily. It was the Chuters who pounded out a win over Oshkosh last week to knock them off the top position of the league they had held practically all season. A Grand Chute win over Neenah and Oshkosh wins the weekend would see the Sawdust City nine representing the league in the state meet.

Oshkosh meets Menasha Sunday in what should be the best game of the week. Oshkosh will shoot everything to best the Eagles.

The Green Bay Thomas Drugs invade Appleton Sunday to battle the Giesen Taverns in the other league game. Appleton always has been tough for the Bays and is playing good ball. The Bays have been playing great defensive ball while Appleton has been pounding the horseshoe at a merry clip the last month.

A league meeting is scheduled for 7 o'clock Sunday evening at Kaukauna to discuss the state tournament.

2nd Division Teams

MANAWA—New London and Shawano, tied for the lead in the Wolf Valley league, will risk their high ranking positions against a pair of second division teams Sunday. Shawano, the surprise club of the circuit during the second half, will entertain Manawa, a team that has gone into a tailspin of late, while New London will travel to Weyauwega. In other games Marion plays at Clintonville, and Neopit and Waupaca will meet as one of the feature attractions at the Scandinavia fair.

Waupaca and Neopit were dropped from a four-way tie for the lead last Sunday. Marion won its first game of the second half with a surprising 3 to 2 victory over the Indians in 10 innings, while Waupaca was taking a severe drubbing from Shawano 18 to 5. New London had little trouble defeating Manawa 10 to 3, and Clintonville easily won over Weyauwega 7 to 1.

Clintonville—The Clintonville Trunkers of the Wolf Valley league were defeated by the Shreveport, La., colored Giants, 9 to 1, under lights here last night. The Trunkers scored in the fourth when Gehrt doubled and tallied when Schmidtke was safe on an error. Tomlin and Huffman tossed for the Trunkers.

Sunday the Trunkers meet Marion under here lights and Thursday Seymour of the Land O' Lakes league will come to Clintonville.

Last night's score by innings:

Fourth Ward Giants
Answer Legion Charge

Carey's Fourth Ward Giants are disputing several claims of the American Legion team, which the Giants defeated the other evening. First of all the Giants say the score should be 12 and 6. The score announced yesterday was 9 and 6 and the Carey's claim Clarence Baetz, who kept score, forgot three of their runs in the second frame, or somewhere.

The other claim of the Giants revolves around figures, too. They claim they had the oldest player on the field

Paper Mills Face Many Problems of Sewage Disposal

Large Expenditures Made In Effort to Control Wastes

"Local mills have spent more time and money to solve the problems of disposing of their sewage than has the public," according to a news bulletin distributed by the Appleton Chamber of Commerce. "Few people appreciate or understand the tremendous problem of disposing of paper mill wastes and the strides that have been made by the industries in this field," the bulletin reads.

An executive of a local mill stated his company spent $150,000 during the last five years in an effort to curb the wastes. The man did not represent the largest mill in Appleton and the figure quoted is but an example of the costs being borne by mills in Appleton and Wisconsin, according to the bulletin.

The company had been able to cut pulp wood wastes from 3 per cent to 1 per cent. The state board of health requires mills to keep this type of waste to 1 1/2 per cent. When kept at this rate, it does not constitute a health hazard, the bulletin continues.

Can't Control Sulphite

"Sulphite wastes present an entirely different problem. A feasible method has been devised to control this type of waste. It cannot be delivered to a sewage disposal plant because of its acid reaction and no practical commercial process has been introduced for its control.

"One concern in the Wisconsin river valley is reported to have spent over a million dollars installing equipment designed to eliminate sulphite wastes and the system has not proved satisfactory," the bulletin reads.

"If the public continues to force the paper industry to increase its cost of operations through unreasonable demands, it is likely that we might lose some of our paper industries. Florida and Canada give new industry five years freedom from taxation. In addition, both Canada and Florida have plenty of raw materials and have plenty of cheap labor available. Our mills have to meet such competition now and with the added burden of all other forms of taxation, there is a good possibility that industry might decide to quit rather than carry an unfair burden.

"The city can ill afford to lose any industrial payroll. It is much better and more satisfactory to keep the industry we now have than to try and fill an unoccupied plant, it concludes."

Soon Jimmy Walker Will Be Eligible for Pension

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York—As a reward for something over 22 years of employment in that which is facetiously known as the public service in New York, Jimmy Walker soon will be eligible for a pension of approximately one-third of his average pay for the last five years of his attachment to the public payrolls.

The pension will be around or about $12,000 a year, toward which he contributed, in his time, an amount estimated at $16,000. There appears to be some private feeling that Mr. Walker really does not deserve any pension, for he left town abruptly without troubling to explain certain matters which still may be regarded by the captious as unfinished business, and his current employment is looked upon by some as artificial and a political expedient intended only to qualify him for the pension.

Nevertheless, the law and Tammany politics being as they are, Jimmy soon will be eligible for a weekly check of about $240 as long as he lives. He will continue to receive his $240 a week even though he is physically, mentally and professionally able to earn a first class living at private employment, and this $240 a week will be immune to the federal income tax.

A very attractive service says you, Aye, an elegant service: the service of the public interest (and when you say that, smile), and a fine way to provide against old age. And, although Mr. Walker, for his honest efforts on behalf of his fellow citizens, will be lauded among the aristocrats of the pension roll, he may not be top man, even so.

May be Few Dollars Under Charles Berry

He may be a few dollars under Charles W. Berry, who used to be comptroller at a very fair rate of pay, and who draws $12,425 a year, free of the federal tax. Mr. Berry put $25,362 into the pension kitty over the years of his relationship with the public treasury, and it was a grand investment, so it was. He gets it all back in a couple of years of retirement, and beyond that the pension is gravy.

John P. O'Brien, who served a short piece as mayor after Mr. Walker hurried away to suffer and pine on the Riviera and in London, also does very well on his investment. He put in $26,185 and draws $11,989 a year now. Having been retired for 3 1/2 years he has already withdrawn all he put into the pot and is now a distinguished guest of the taxpayers at the rate of more than $200 a week.

The late Judge Dan Noble, a surrogate of Queens, was another who received a fine reward, for he contributed $13,475 and drew a pension of $12,002 for more than seven years. Name, if you can, another community on earth which equals the gratitude of New York's citizens toward those who draw their pay out of the tax money.

The firemen, drawing around $3,000 a year, are eligible for retirement after 20 years on half pay, and the policemen may do the same after 25 years. Thus many an able fireman and cop gains the force in the prime of life with a guaranteed income which other workers in private employment in the same salary brackets could not hope put aside and goes into the job-market to underbid men in need of work to earn a living.

Conservation Commission Wants to Clear Winnebago of Rough Fish

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison—A heavy campaign to remove sheephead from the deeper areas of Lake Winnebago is slated for this fall, the state conservation department announced here yesterday. Operations will be carried on several miles from shore, and will be the only work of its kind in the middlewest, the department said.

Since the start of the spring campaign on April 15, the conservation department crews have taken more than 3,000,000 pounds of carp from 30 state lakes and rivers in the drive to rid game fish waters of rough fish species. Much of the total catch was from Lake Winnebago where state crews have been at work most of the summer.

Robert A. Gray, superintendent of commercial and contract fishing for the department, reports that about 50,000 pounds of marketable carp has been moved into trade channels weekly and that the balance has been sent to the canning plant at Madison to be made into food for game fish and fur animals. "The intensive carp control program will probably have no noticeable effect on fishing for the present but is expected to show definite results within the next two years," the conservation department said.

Alert Chicago Pilot Sets Plane Down Safely

Chicago—(U)—The alertness of Pilot James Goins was credited today for the escape of 14 passengers from injury or death in a transport plane during an emergency landing in a blinding rain storm. The United Airlines pilot set the plane down on its belly in a field adjacent to the municipal airport yesterday, barely clearing a 12 foot railroad embankment.

Witnesses said the plane, inbound from San Francisco, landed with ailerons up, and the pilot, who was not hurt, was seen to get out of the plane and walk toward the terminal.

Handicapped Youths Given School Chance

Carl G. Bertram, vocational school co-ordinator, announced today that 60 rehabilitation cases in Appleton and 50 cases in the county have been contacted this summer, and between 25 and 30 will enroll at the vocational school here this fall. Others will enter Lawrence, Wisconsin university, and other Wisconsin colleges.

These arrangements are made, Mr. Bertram said, under the Civilian Rehabilitation Act, providing for the rehabilitation of physically handicapped people, which has been in force since 1920. The act is designed to aid those people who have suffered industrial injuries, public and farm accidents, handicaps through disease, and congenital disabilities. Those who come under these classes are interviewed, and if they are eligible for the program, the type of school, course, and financial assistance is decided upon.

Chief Warns Against Shooting in the City

A warning to parents to stop their children from shooting air-guns and slingshots in the city was issued today by Chief of Police George T. Prim. The police department has been receiving a number of complaints on youths shooting in the ravine near Bellaire court and around Riverside cemetery, and continued offenses will result in arrests, Chief Prim said.

Execute Major Green For Killing Housewife

Ossining, N. Y.—(U)—Mrs. Mary Robinson Case, pretty 25-year-old housewife, died last January in the bathtub of a Jackson Heights, Queens, apartment, the victim of strangling fingers about her throat and hammer blows on her head. Major Green, meek-looking 34-year-old negro handyman, died last night in the electric chair at Sing Sing prison, his life claimed by the state in payment for the slaying of Mrs. Case.

Green stumbled to the chair in silence, his eyes closed. The Rev. Anthony N. Petersen, Protestant chaplain, intoned the 23rd psalm as Green was fastened in the chair. Green's lips fluttered in accompaniment but no sound came forth. He was pronounced dead three minutes after he entered the death chamber.

No word came from the husband, Frank Case, employee of a hotel supply company, who found his wife's battered body Jan. 11. Green had killed her when she caught the handyman in the act of robbing the apartment to which she had come as a bride about a year before.

FLAME TRAIL

SYNOPSIS: Josh Hastings, owner of the Flying Six, tries to buy Kay Crandon's Lazy Nine after her ranch house and barn burn. He also tries to court Kay, but she distrusts him and is determined to keep her ranch. Ted Gaynor, a puncher she impulsively hired, stirs the outfit to cut its own timber and rebuild without pay. Hastings' cowhand, Scrap Johnson, molests Kay, but Ted rescues her and whips Scrap. Later they have a gun duel at the divide, wounding each other. Hastings, who hates both men, finds them and murders Scrap, using Ted's gun to frame him. Ted crawls to a shack where a girl takes him in.

Chapter 22
Anxious Waiting
KAY woke up with a start, as a ray of the early morning sun slanted through the cabin window and shone insistently in her eyes.
"Thank goodness the sun's out at last!" She glanced out the window, then snuggled down in bed again to indulge in a few moments of tempting day-dreams.
It was the third day since Ted had left, and Kay planned with happy excitement the way she would greet him when he arrived with his mother and sister.
She had recovered from her hurt feeling at the news Tom Runyon had brought of Ted's first fight with Scrap Johnson. Whatever reasons he had had for not telling her, she was going to give him the benefit of the doubt, and wait until he was ready to tell her.
Kay smiled drowsily to herself. One thing she was sure of--he hadn't been thinking of any dark haired girl when he had said good by to her! And somehow, she knew that he wasn't going to waste any time getting back to her.
During the storm that had raged for the last two days, Kay had busied herself getting the extra cabin ready for Ted's mother and sister. It had been furnished in a rough sort of way. By picking out odds and ends from the bunk house, and using some of the few things that had been saved from the fire, Kay had contrived to make it quite homelike.
Babs had ridden over once in the downpour to report that all was well at the Flying Six, and that Aunt Kate and she were in no hurry to leave their present quarters.
A frown puckered Kay's forehead as her thoughts shifted from Ted to the situation at the Flying Six. It was galling to be accepting Josh Hastings' hospitality for members of her family, even if she wasn't accepting it for herself.
She hadn't seen him alone since that visit when she had told him of her plans, with such near-disastrous consequences. One good thing, at least, had come out of it. She had positive proof now that Josh Hastings was working against her. The doubtful point was whether he knew that she was aware of

Evangelical Church Opens District Conference at Forest Junction

Forest Junction — Opening with a sermon by the Rev. H. P. Jordan of Morrison at 7:45 Friday evening, the annual religious assembly for the Appleton district of the Wisconsin conference of the Evangelical church will get under way. For ten days the tented city erected Friday morning around an aggregation of permanent frame buildings at the district camp ground here will harbor hundreds of worshippers coming from an eastern Wisconsin area lying approximately between Port Washington and Marinette.

A camp meeting from Friday evening to Thursday noon, as the opening feature of the assembly, dates back to the primitive days of this community immediately after the close of the Civil war, when itinerant preachers from Manitowoc and Fond du Lac counties would conduct open air meetings among the German settlers here. Where 70 years ago, relatively small numbers would trudge to these gatherings on foot, trusting to hospitality of residents other accommodations are now enjoyed by those attending from over an enlarged area. For the first time this year, a house trailer, from Marion, has made reservations for parking at the camp for the duration of the assembly.

Summer Youth Gathering — The largest influx of visiting delegations will be here next Thursday when the assembly resolves itself into a summer youth gathering, combining a Christian Endeavor and Sunday school convention and a school of religion and methods.

By the last Sunday in August, when the meetings conclude, a maximum attendance of about 2,000 will have been attained.

The camp is located just west of Forest Junction, immediately below the West viaduct on Highways 10 and 57, with a long driveway going through underneath the structure from an entrance in the village.

The Rev. W. C. Raddatz of Appleton, district superintendent, will conduct quarterly conferences for the Brillion, Forest Junction, Morrison, and Reedsville circuits on Friday evening and Saturday afternoon this week, leading up to a communion service at 10 o'clock Sunday morning. Edward F. Bruege of Morrison will conduct a Sunday school session at 9 o'clock Sunday mornings, at which the Rev. O. A. Hillmann of Reedsville will give the lesson discussion.

Carroll College Speaker — An address by Dr. W. A. Gansfield of Carroll college, Waukesha, has been arranged for 2:15 Sunday afternoon by the Albright Brotherhood of the district. John Trautmann, Appleton, district president of the brotherhood, has charge of the meeting.

Scheduled to arrive at the camp Tuesday is Dr. Reuben H. Exception in the evening schedule is on Saturday, Aug. 28, when a Seymour young people's group will present a pageant "The Return of the Prodigal." Two periods of bible study, at 11 o'clock on Friday and Saturday forenoons, will also be conducted by Dr. Mueller.

Temporal interests of the assembly will be cared for in two business sessions. Stockholders of the Appleton district campmeeting association will meet in annual session at 1 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. Routine matters to be disposed of include the election of two members on the board of directors to succeed Henry Bloy and John Seybold, whose 2-year terms have expired. Is your jelly still a matter of luck?

Then hurry and try Sure-Jell, the amazing new discovery that gives perfect results with any fruit!

So much more jelly and jam from your fruit juice, too! 10 glasses from the same amount of juice that gave you only 6 the old, "long-boil" way. And Sure-Jell's "short-boil" keeps all the natural flavor of the fresh fruit itself.

Boil your fruit juice 1/2 minute for jellies; one minute for jams—that's all! Save time, money, work—and get better jams and jellies! Ask your grocer for Sure-Jell.

ONLY
1/2 MINUTE BOIL
FOR JELLIES; ONE MINUTE FOR JAMS!
NO FRUIT JUICE GOES
OFF IN STEAM — NO
"BOILED-DOWN" TASTE!

FAR FINER FLAVOR!
Jams and jellies made with Sure-Jell retain the full flavor of fresh fruit itself . . . Because with that short boil, no flavor goes off in steam!

FRUIT IS PLENTIFUL AND CHEAP RIGHT NOW!
So don't wait! Start today to fill up your jelly cupboard with these delicious jams and jellies your family will enjoy so much next winter!

1,573 Youngsters Of School Age are Counted in Census

1937 Total for New London Is Five Higher Than Last Year

New London—There are 1,573 boys and girls in New London between the ages of 4 and 20 from whose ranks the New London schools will draw enrollments this fall according to figures shown by the 1937 school census recently completed and on file at the office of H. H. Helms, superintendent of schools.

The figure this year varies only five from the 1,568 of last year and records show little change during the past four years. In 1931, the year prior to the completion of the new Washington high school, there were 1,497 children listed, a difference of 76.

The total number of boys and girls has varied as little with the number of girls exceeding the boys in recent years. There are a total of 780 boys listed this year and 793 girls whereas in 1931 there were 784 boys and 793 girls.

Children eligible to attend parochial schools this year number less than many years previous. There are 379 this year against 413 last year and 392 in 1931. Last year girls outnumbered boys 212 to 201 but this year it is the opposite case, 192 to 187.

Among the totals for this year are 223 boys and 341 girls between the ages of 7 and 14 years. There are only 83 boys and 96 girls a total of 179, between the ages of 14 and 16, the early high school age, indicating a large percentage of outside enrollment at the New London High school with its several classes averaging more than 120 students each.

The census includes the five wards of the city and a portion of Hortonville. During the past several years the canvass has been made by Miss Margaret Wright, student at the University of Wisconsin.

The census includes all children and young people between the ages of 4 and 20 regardless of whether they attend school or not.

The Men's club showed three home run hitters as the Rev. Mr. Fankow, Melvin Wolfarth and Ben Boese. Orville DeGroff circled the sacks for the Lions. Wisconsin Leads In Fight to End Bang's Disease

Waupaca County Has 9,500 Head of Cattle Under Supervision

Royalton—In the national campaign for the eradication of Bang's disease, Wisconsin is leading all states in the number of breeding cattle under supervision for the disease, according to reports received here.

Waupaca county has at present about 9,500 head under supervision. There are about 3,200 dairy herds and 35,000 dairy cows in the county. To date 350 herds have had three clean tests and are accredited, about 800 have had one or two tests.

All qualified veterinarians in the county are employed in making tests and there also is part time service of a federal veterinarian. The ruling is, that if 75 per cent of the breeders in the county wish to have their herds tested for Bang's disease, it is compulsory for all to do so.

Three tests are required to determine if a herd is clean and eligible to be accredited. When a herd is tested the first time and there are no reactors, the second test is not made for six months and if still clean the third test is not made for another six months. Should there be a reactor in the first test, the second is made in 90 days.

There is a big demand from eastern markets, especially Pennsylvania and New Jersey, for Wisconsin cattle. Buyers from those states have been visiting Waupaca county for most of their purchases.

Milk cows tubercular and Bang's disease are bringing around $100 and are rather hard to get.

Initial steps have been taken in the county in a get-together of bankers and breeders whereby the bankers will help finance the purchase of herd sires for breeders who are at present financially unable to do so. Details of the plan are tentative but will be completed soon.
